AUSTRIA IS ACTIVE ON EAST FRONT

CAPTURE OF 3,000 ITAL-IANS IS REPORTED
BY VIENNA.

VERDUN FIGHT FIERCE

DEFEAT OF BRITISH IN SUDAN IS REPORTED FROM TURKEY.

Continuing their determined offensive on the Italian front, and extending its scope, the Austrians have made further progress in the southern Tyrol. The Vienna war office today announces that the peak of the Armentara Ridge has been carried. Several additional villages also have been occupied by the Austrians.

More than 3,000 Italians were captured in Saturday's fighting, together with 25 cannon and 8 machine guns.

Fighting of the most intense character is in progress in the Dead Man Hill region northwest of Verdun where the Germans are desperately battling to break down the French defense and gain undisputed possession of this commanding eminence and the other key position to the Verdun fortress—Hill 304. This afternoon's Paris bulletin records
the repulse of renewed attacks by the Crown Prince's troops west of Dead Man Hill, where the German lines were advanced Saturday night
as the result of furious assaults.

Paris also claims the capture during last night of several block-houses that were held by the Germans in the Avocourt wood, southwest of Hill 304, and the beating off of German attempts to recapture the Haudremont quarry, east of the Meuse, near Douaumont, which the French took yesterday.

The German steamer Worms of 4,428 tons, which left Sweden several days ago for Germany, is missing and is believed to have fallen victim to one of the allied submarines now operating in the Baltic.

Violent cannonading has been heard in the Baltic off the Swedish coast, according to a news agency despatch today, leading to a belief that German and Russian warships have been in an engagement in those waters.

The British forces in the Sudan
are reported through Constantinople
to have met with a defeat in a battle with rebellious tribesmen in the province of Darfur.

Possibly because these forces were needed in pushing the offensive against the Italians, the Austrians are reported to have withdrawn 50-600 troops from Albania.

RUSSIANS AFTER SUBMARINES.

German Shipping in the Baltic is Annoyed by Czar's Fleet.

LONDON, May 22.—Russian submarines continue to harass German shipping in the Baltic. An Exchange Telegraph despatch from Copenhagen quotes the Politiken as saying the German steamship Worms 4,428 tons gross and owned in Hamburg, is believed to have been one of the latest victims. The Worms left Sweden several days ago and has not reached Germany.

It is also reported that the Swedish steamship Rosalind, 877 tons, struck a mine near Stockholm last night and sank. The crew was saved.

The American embassy at Constantinople, which has charge of British interests in Turkey during the war, sent word today of the disposition of the British forces captured by the Turks at Kut-el-Amara.
This information is contained in the following official statement from the British press bureau.

"Ambassador Page states that the American embassy at Constantinople has been informed by the Ottoman government that General Townshend (who was in command at Kut-el-Amara) and his staff will be brought to Constantinople and probably will be assigned to the island of Prin-kipo (in the sea of Marmora) where they will be allowed full liberty.
Some will be sent to Damascus."

PARIS, May 22.—French grenadiers occupied several block-houses
in Avocourt wood on the Verdun front in the course of severe fighting last night.

The struggle west of Dead Man's Hill was terrific. The war office statement of this afternoon says the attacks of German infantry were repulsed.

NEW CARRANZA NOTE ON BORDER CASE IS DUE AT CAPITAL

Report That Cavalry Has Reinforced Langhorne is Unconfirmed.

Some Anxiety at San Antonio as to Hostile Bands.

MARATHON, Texas, May 22.—
The report brought here last night by Captain H. L. Evans, that two troops of the Fourteenth cavalry under Colonel Sibley's command, had been sent into Mexico to reinforce Major Langhorne's detachment, said to be menaced by Yaqui Indians,
still was unconfirmed today.

A report reached here today that Mexican snipers had fired on two American soldiers bathing in the Rio Grande near Deemer's Ford, Friday
but failed to hit them.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—The state department has been advised that a new note from General Carranza on the border situation probably will reach Washington today or tomorrow. It will be transmitted through Eliseo Arredondo, the Carranza ambassador.

Special Agent Rogers at Mexico
City, has been unable as yet to report what phase of the situation has called for the new communication.
Some officials believe it possible that the new note deals with the Glenn Springs raid. Representations were made by the state department at the time which have not been answered by General Carranza.

It is probable that the new American expedition sent over the line
after the raid may be the cause of the coming note.

Border reports insist that Colonel Sibley, commanding the new expedition, is already withdrawing his forces to the American side, but Secretary Baker reiterated today that General Funston had not so advised
the war department. He added, however, that the question was wholly in General Funston's hands.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, May 22.—
Some anxiety as to the reported situation of the American troops south of Boquillas was displayed today at General Funston's headquarters. No official reports, however, indicating hostile movements of any band near Colonel Sibley's two troops of the Fourteenth cavalry had been received.

When last accounted for, Major Langhorne and his two troops of the Eight cavalry were moving northward to join Colonel Sibley.

firmation was obtained today of the

STATE NOTABLES TO ATTEND FIREMEN'S MEET IN LIMA

Men Famed in Political Circles Will Act as Non-Partisans.

Volunteer Day, June 15,
Will be the "Big Time."

Plans for the Volunteer Firemen convention as announced this morning include the importation of several speakers of state-wide note, who will be the guests of the visiting delegates during Volunteer day, June 15. Governor Frank B. Willis and Harry M. Daugherty, senatorial candidate, have accepted conditionally, their presence being contingent on
the early adjournment of the republican national convention at Chicago.
Former Governor James M. Cox and Mayor George J. Karb, of Columbus, have also been invited, but are unable to accept because of conflicting engagements at St. Louis, the seat of the democratic national convention.

Attorney Warren J. McLaughlin
and Dr. John H. Blattenberg compose the committee in charge of securing the speakers for Volunteer day. Their aim is to preserve the non-partisan aspect of the gathering by securing two speakers from each party, and although their plans have not yet been completed they expect to present two prominent orators of each political faith on that occasion.
Two national conventions cut into the proposed program in a peculiar way. One convenes before the firemen's gathering and may be held over in a deadlock until too late to be of service.

GOEKE TO RUN UNLESS CUNNINGHAM PULLS OUT OF RACE FOR CONGRESS

Says Bluffton Man Instigated Denominational Issue and Must Fight or Quit

ISSUES WAR ULTIMATUM

Remarkable Announcement By Wapak-oneta Attorney Throws Down Gauntlet and Makes Him Provisional Candidate

By David W. Bowman.

John Henry Goeke has broken his long silence with regard to the congressional situation. His expression takes the form of a signed statement addressed to the voters, indicating that he will be a candidate for congress as long as N. W. Cunningham entertains the hope of being elected to that position.

Goeke's attitude, as implied in the ultimatum and even more strongly between the lines, is that the Bluffton banker was personally and directly responsible for the injection of denominationalism into the last campaign. He also states that he has no desire to go to congress, but that in order to eliminate Cunningham as a factor he will make the race, adding that the church issue
used in the last fight has no place in politics and must be removed by removing the instigator.

The statement takes a number of various turns and is apparently directed to several groups. First, he explains that he desires to inform those, who are afraid to run because of his anticipated entrance, just where he stands. Then he states that personal ambitions have nothing to do with it, for the venture would be a financial loss because of the interference with his law practice. The next turn is toward a historical resume, charging Cunningham with breach of faith, and declaring that the latter was put into the race of 1914 by "Influences outside of the district." From this he launches into a personal estimate of his rival, which cannot be classed as lukewarm in tenor.

The Wapakoneta attorney then devotes his attention to the need of an "available candidate" who can be elected and become useful in Washington. In this connection there is a trace of advice to county candidates throughout the district regarding the presence on the ticket of a "millstone." And here enters the challenge that unless Cunningham
abandons the idea of going to congress, after the fight of two years ago, Goeke "will take all of the voters of the district into my confidence and give them some interesting information that is now known to but comparatively few." In other words, he indicates that he has something
ready to "spring."

Goeke's closing sentence hopes
"that this will not become necessary." Whether or not it will bring up the question as to what the Wa-pakoneta man considers the necessity, the inference is that he is to be the judge himself, for the context shows plainly that he will run unless Cunningham decides not to do so.
This gives the ultimatum an aspect of a demand for a "showdown," Goeke evidently believing that he holds the high card.

There is just enough of the definite in the challenge to show the frame of mind of the attorney, for he makes it plain to the other prospective entrants that his own decision lies with Cunningham. But there is also enough of the vague to leave the matter up in the air. Goeke does not state positively what he will do, but makes it contingent on a series of such prepositional words
as "if" and "unless" and the like.

All eyes turn to Cunningham at the result of Goeke's statement that he will "come back" with ether total denials or a set of counter charges appears to be the concentration of opinion. The Goeke proclamation apparently calls for an answer, in that it does not end in a definite conclusion, and the fact that the former congressman claims to have
"some interesting information," adds to the interest of the electorate.

It seems not impossible that the Bluffton man will ignore the threat but common belief is that he will disclaim the authorship of the religious issue by simply retorting that he cannot be held responsible for what a few of his foolish, over-zealous and short-sighted adherents may have done without his knowledge or consent.

The text of the statement, prepared
by Goeke personally and signed
in accordance with the "anonymous
attack" statute, is as follows:
"In view of the fact that the time limit for the announcement of candidates for Congress is soon to expire and that there is a general impression throughout the district that I am a candidate for the democratic nomination, I feel that it is only fair to those who may be desirous of entering the contest that I should make a statement as to my position, especially since my friends all over the district have been constantly urging me again to become a candidate, saying that my hat is already in the ring."

"I want first to make it plain that my hat is not in the ring without my consent. I have privately advised my friends from time to time that I was averse to becoming a candidate again at this time because of the great personal see-

MEMORIAL PLANS FOR LIMA COMPLETED

Parade, Grave Decoration and Addresses Are Included in Day.

With the exception of a few minor details, all arrangements for the proper observance of Memorial day in Lima has been completed. The exercises will be held in the afternoon at Memorial hall. A parade, which will include veterans and all patriotic societies, will be a feature in the afternoon. The parade will form on Market street and the Public Square and march down Elizabeth to Water, east on Water to Main,
north on Main to Wayne, west on Wayne to West, south on West to Market, east to Elizabeth and then to Memorial hall. School children will be asked to take part.

The program and address by the Rev. Warren J. Dunham of Grace
Methodist church, will follow the parade at Memorial hall. Vocal numbers and readings will feature.
Martial music will cause the footsteps of the veterans to march in tune to the sentiments of the day.

In the morning the graves of soldiers who sleep in Woodlawn, Gethsemane, the old cemetery in the east part of the city, and out-lying cemeteries, will be decorated. An urgent request is made that owners of automobiles lend their cars for just a few hours on Memorial day that those of the veterans who are borne down by age and time may comfortably take part in the exercises. Calvin Osborne is chairman of the committee.

Mart Armstrong post war veterans and patriotic societies will attend Memorial day services next Sunday morning at the First Christian church, when the Rev. W. J.
Young will deliver the address. Special music, under the direction of R.
B. Mikeseil, choir leader, will be given.

In the evening the veterans and kindred societies will attend services at St. Paul's Lutheran church, when the Rev. E. A. Trabert will give the sermon.

The text of the statement, prepared
by Goeke personally and signed
in accordance with the "anonymous

MAKES REMARKABLE CHARGES.

J. HENRY GOEKE

Wapakoneta ex-congressman accuses N. W. Cunningham of starting denominational issue in 1914 and declares he'll run for congress unless latter withdraws.

Fourth district in Sunday's Enquirer is as follows:

"In Allen county there is a great 'to-do' over the reported entrance into the contest of T. P. Riddle, formerly corn contest manager of the state agricultural commission and once secretary of the Board of Trade of Lima. Mr. Riddle is the unfortunate person whose private files of correspondence with State Chairman William L. Finley, of the democratic campaign committee, got into the hands of the republican managers during the 1914 campaign. Exactly how it occurred has never been explained to this day, and the corn contest manager never went so far as to employ detectives to find out. One of these pussy-footed fellows who are referred to as 'reliable sources of information' dropped in the other evening to say that Riddle has recently been trying to square matters with Finley, who is said to have used some unscrupulous language regarding this victim of circumstances. Before he went away the reliable source also slipped out the information that it was likely that T. P. was running in order to divide further the vote in Allen county, where 'Dick' Cunningham of Bluffton, the nominee of two years ago, is fighting for renomination. But he didn't say in whose interest this divide-and-conquer thing was being worked. Wonder who?"

Another fling at the district reads as follows: "He's loose again! Yes, sir, Dr. F. M. Hunt, of Piqua, is once more in the race for the democratic nomination for congress in the Fourth district. It was 20 years ago that he first essayed the trial, being a candidate upon the then novel free silver ticket. Two years ago the good doctor got into the celebrated row over that way and again finished outside the breakfasts. Little things like being bowled over in conventions, primaries and general elections do not daunt the doctor, who comes up smiling like the sun on a frosty morning. There's some comfort in the situation of Candidate Hunt. He will have plenty of company, especially from Allen county, which has several to use a modest measure of quantity. It should be mentioned that the doctor has put up $25 in real money with the election board in Miami county as an earnest of his sincere intentions toward securing the nomination."

TWENTY-FIVE JOIN COMPANY C. RANKS

Captain Clark Creps of Company C announced today that 25 names were obtained during the morning at the four recruiting depots, which have been established at the request of Adjutant General Hough and will be called on to serve if the situation demands it.

Following instructions from Hough a short time ago the company was increased to a peace strength footing, which is 65 men and three officers. In case of war the reserves will be added to the company making a total of 150 men and three officers.

Captain Clark W. Creps opened one list at the Emerson Price company, East High street. Others were opened by Battalion Quartermaster Lieutenant W. A. Wilcox, south side fire station; Second Lieutenant Daily, Main and Kibby; and Regimental Quartermaster's Sergeant M. M. Shreveaux, No. 140 West High street.

SCHOOL CENSUS INCOMPLETE

With reports not returned from eight buildings yet, the enumeration of pupils of school age in Lima is still incomplete. Older-grade school children took the enumeration. When completed, Prof. J. E. Collins, superintendent, hopes to not only be able to ascertain the pupils of school age who will enter next year but for several years to come, so thorough has been the canvass. He figures that upon the same basis Lima's population can accurately be estimated.

LOCOMOTIVE PLANT GETS BIG ORDER

Another large sized order for locomotives was received this morning by the Lima Locomotive corporation from the southern Railway. The booking calls for the construction of eight switch engines and six Mikado type locomotives. This increases the number of orders contracted by the company to about 164 engines.

The switch engines which weigh each 208,000 pounds are provided with cylinders 24 inches in diameter and with a 28-inch stroke. They will each have eight wheels and 51 inch drivers, and the tenders will weigh 114,000 pounds. The Mikados which are to weigh 285,000 pounds will have 27 by 30 inch cylinders and their tenders will weigh 153,000 pounds. They will be provided with eight drivers which are 63 inches in diameter. Two-wheel pony trucks are on the front and rear of each of the engines.

BRIDE INJURED WHEN BUGGY BREAKS DOWN

When the wheel of the buggy in which they were riding came off by the loosening of a burr, Mrs. Lee, her daughter and son-in-law were injured last night when near the home of the Rev. G. R. Mell of 700 South Broadway. The horse ran as far as the Metcalf street bridge before it was caught, after throwing the occupants out of the buggy. Mrs. Lee and the young man received painful bruises and cuts about the body. The daughter is believed to be internally injured. They were given first aid at the Mell home and were taken to their home, three miles east of Wapakoneta, in an automobile near midnight. The daughter is unable to leave her bed today. The couple were married on Saturday and came to Lima to visit relatives on the north side.

Mrs. Lee and the young woman are the mother and sister of Conductor Lee of the Pine and Wayne street car line.

CARTER CASE WILL HAVE OPEN DATE

Hearing of the motion for a permanent injunction to prevent the Allen county commissioners, the city of Lima, A. L. Methuen, public service director, and Henry S. Buck, contractor, from entering their premises on the Allentown road, with a view to surveying for paving, was postponed in court this morning. Proceedings, asking for an injunction, were started Friday by James Carter and wife.

LORAIN.—Seven other victims injured in Memorial hospital here are preparing to follow the suit of Adolph Lawrence, machinist, of Gary, Ind., in suing the New York Central railroad for $50,000 as the result of injuries sustained in a little wreck at Amherst, March 29. Lawrence had his left leg broken three times. Twenty-seven were killed in the wreck, and 47 were injured.

LORAIN.—City council has passed an ordinance providing for the placing of inmates in the city prison at work on the streets. Vagrants and those arrested for intoxication who have no money will be forced to work out their fines at the rate of 15 cents an hour.

SIX HUNDRED ARE PRESENT WHEN K.C.'S INITIATE BIG CLASS

Knights Attend Mass at St. Rose Catholic Church in Morning.

The Rev. Father Manning Delivers Welcome For Lima Council.

The same beautiful mass which characterized the service on Easter morning at St. Rose Catholic church was repeated yesterday morning, when 400 members of Lima council, Knights of Columbus, and their guests, attended mass at St. Rose church. The Rev. Father Joseph Behr, pastor of the new St. Gerard's parish, delivered the sermon. The Rev. Father A. E. Manning, pastor of St. Rose church, was in charge of the mass and was assisted by the Rev. William A. Tobin and Rev. Father Alphonsus Roach, of St. Rose parish. The occasion was the big initiation ceremonies of Lima council, Knights of Columbus.

Six hundred Knights of Columbus witnessed the initiation of a class of 45 candidates into the order yesterday afternoon. Of this number, 45 were from Lima. Findlay had one candidate, Wapakoneta 1 and Ottawa 2. The first degree had been conferred upon these candidates by Wapakoneta council on Friday evening.

The conference of degrees was exemplified in the Knights of Columbus' hall in the Holland building, from which members and visitors marched to the church in the morning. Lima council put on the second degree in the afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. The third degree was exemplified by Past State Deputy T. J. Duffy, of Columbus, and John W. Loftus and staff of Chicago.

Dinner was served in the evening at 6:30 o'clock at the Elks' home after degrees had been conferred. Attorney Weadock served as toastmaster. The Rev. A. E. Manning gave the welcome, as chaplain of Lima council. T. J. Duffy, as past state deputy, spoke on "Knighthood."

The Hon. W. A. Geoghegan, of Cincinnati, gave an address on "American Citizenship." He spoke for nearly an hour, delighting the entire company. Past State Deputy Duffy also consumed an hour in the delivery of his address. Both men were given the closest attention.

Remarks were also made by other members of the order. Four hundred places were laid at the dinner, the capacity of the Elks' home being taxed for the occasion. Many members therefore took dinner at home to give way to visitors. The dinner was served by 25 young women, daughters and sisters of the knights.

The ceremonies were in charge of the following committee: George F. Barrett, chairman; Herman Myers, John J. Malloy, Albert Altenberg, Francis W. Durbin, Frank Callahan, and John A. O'Connor, who were complimented on every hand for their success in arranging the eventful day.

SAY, FELLOWS, IT WILL BE A GAME!

One of the most important events during the Firemen's convention in Lima will be the ball game between teams made up of members of the police force and local firemen. Although the firemen have no definite lineup at the present time, the police will line-up as follows: Blair, captain and pitcher; Bridge, pitcher; Crisberry, 1b; Eberle, 2b; Drosch, 3b; Houtz, 3b; Thomas, ss; Taylor, c; Kintzer, lf; Roush, cf and Lawlor, rf. The following are substitutes: Chief McKinney, Conaghan, McCoy, Dawson, Hamilton, Parker, Snyder and Grant.

DIVORCES GRANTED.

Corra Case of 1011 1/2 South Main street, was given a decree from David H. Case on the grounds of gross neglect of duty. Judge Klingler granted both divorces.

WAR AFFECTS BUGS' MENU.

Lead arsenate, instead of Paris Green, will be used to combat the 1916 crop of potato bugs according to the department of horticulture, Ohio State University. The war has hoisted the price of Paris green from 25 to 50 cents per pound and will probably remain at that price. Although Paris green has been used universally against the potato bug, yet lead arsenate is just as effective in killing the pests although it acts more slowly. It has the advantage of sticking to the foliage and does not burn the leaves. It should be applied early in June, as soon as the bugs appear or the eggs are laid. Applications throughout the summer are necessary.

Kelly Brothers are sinking the well for the Rabbit Foot Oil Company.

The part the children will play in the coming Chautauqua to be held the week of July 13, will make parents wish to become subscribers. The children will be given special training, be taught to play in a systematic manner and be given art and crafts. The juvenile hours will be from 7:30 until 11 o'clock, mornings, Chautauqua week.

RETURNED MISSION WORKER IS SPEAKER

A fund of missionary experiences gained in the Kono country in West Africa, during her stay as a missionary across the water, furnished the basis for two addresses, given yesterday morning and evening at the First United Brethren church by Mrs. J. Hal. Smith, now of Dayton.

No services were held at the High street United Brethren church in the evening, members uniting with the First church. Mrs. Smith spoke to a large and enthusiastic audience. A collection was taken at the close to aid mission work.

Mrs. Smith told of some of the strange customs and manners of the people with whom she worked and of their superstitions. "If for no other reason than to rid the people of superstitious beliefs, we need the Bible in foreign lands," she said. She declared the mission work the greatest the church had before it today and declared it was one that could not be overlooked in the responsibility of the church to God.

STATE NOTABLES TO ATTEND FIREMEN'S MEET IN LIMA

(Continue from page one) permit the presence of Willis and Daugherty while the other starts during the local convention. This precludes the obtaining of several of the leading figures of the state, for they are in most cases delegates to the national political meetings at Chicago and St. Louis.

None of the speakers will, however, be permitted to discuss political matters, and their invitations are extended as to prominent speakers of state-wide interest who are known to the firemen from all parts of Ohio. It is probable that they will select their own subjects, which will undoubtedly be in line with the spirit of the convention and limited to topics of general interest.

Arrangements for the day include plenty of music, as a means of separating the addresses. A session will be held in the evening, as well as during the day, thus permitting the speakers to talk at length. It has also been arranged that no references to candidacies, in the way of demonstrations, will be allowed to permeate the gathering, out of respect to the opposition candidates. The presence, however, of prominent political figures, will offer visitors an opportunity to meet in a personal and informal manner men whom they might otherwise be unable to meet.

MORTON CASE UP AGAIN.

Trial of the case of Lester L. Morton against the C. and E. railroad was begun in court at noon today, before Judge John P. Bailey, of Ottawa, and a jury. Morton asks $5,000 for alleged personal injuries. The case is expected to occupy two or three days in court. Morton claims he was injured when a train upon which he was riding, jarrred him to the tracks and passed over his foot. The case will be strongly contested.

PREPAREDNESS FOR ECONOMIC WARFARE URGED BY HERRICK

Former Ambassador Says U. S. Must Anticipate Coming Crises.

Close of War, a Year Off, Will Mean Competition, He Declares.

Preparedness of an industrial nature, aimed at meeting the competition of Europe after the close of the war, should be made a national topic by the Wilson administration, according to former Ambassador Myron T. Herrick. To a Times-Democrat representative he stated this afternoon that conditions will force some retrenchment on this side of the Atlantic, for despite the heavy losses in men and property, the belligerent nations will still be able to produce, and cheaply at that.

"We are hearing a great deal about preparedness in a military and naval way at present, all of which I favor," remarked the former governor, but I have not yet noticed a movement of preparedness against the commercial war which is sure to follow the declaration of peace. It is inevitable that we shall be forced into competition with the producers of Europe for the highly organized economic forces of Europe will set every soldier to work rehabilitating the national finances. That means that we will find it necessary to meet by some prohibitive measures, or by a schedule more protective in effect, the inroads of European tradersmen. I say this not as a republican, but as an American."

When asked as to the possible duration of the conflict, Mr. Herrick replied that he could not see how the struggle could last for more than three years in all, or about fifteen months more. "The daily expense of the combined nations has mounted to an enormous sum," he explained. "I believe that it is estimated as $100,000,000. The war has become one of economic endurance, the greatest decisive factor in the long run being resources of men and money. In view of the costly drain on both, I do not see how it will be possible for either side to prolong the fight more than three years."

"How will the South American trade be affected—that is, will Germany be able to retain her supremacy in the trade of Argentina and Brazil?" Governor Herrick was asked.

"There comes up the question of a merchant marine," he replied. "If we as a nation encourage the building of ships we will be able to establish our place in the South American markets. Here again we find a national question on which strong and decisive action might well be applied."

In response to a question regarding the direct primary system, in which he as a senatorial candidate is directly interested, Mr. Herrick remarked that there were defects which should be remedied, but which would sooner or later be made the subject of non-partisan agreement. "Today we require a man to devote almost a year to his campaign if he seeks an office," he said. "The candidate is forced to crucify himself in many cases by abandoning his work, and entering into personal work in every nook and corner of the state. The system has advantages in many ways, but it has not yet been given sufficient testing to deserve either strong approval or strong condemnation. There are often situations, and there have been many such cases in the history of the country, in which a strong man was forced to accept an office which he did not seek. That was when the office sought the man and the public demanded election despite personal reluctance. With the primary system in vogue the voters are not as well equipped to draft into office a man who is loath to seek preferment."

Governor Herrick was entertained at luncheon at the Norval today by a small party of personal friends. B. A. Gramm, F. D. Carpenter, J. S. Stucker, Will Dailey, W. D. Donovan, of Van Wert and Ben Parmely, of Cleveland, brother-in-law of the former ambassador, attended. This afternoon he was a speaker at Bluffton college, the guest of President S. K. Mostman.

VEGETABLES AND FRUITS FURNISH BODY SALTS

Do you always have a tired feeling about this time of year? Do you crave for different diets and relish new dishes? Then provide plenty of garden produce for the table, for vegetables and fruits furnish a large part of the mineral salts that are necessary to the well-being of the human system. Vegetables in the diet are worth more than their food or money value. The need of tonics and other medicines in the spring is due largely to the lack of vegetables and fruit in the winter diet. If more succulent food were used, less money would be spent in doctor's fees and few medicines.

MUST FACE GRAND LARCENY CHARGES

Harley Martin, 17, Taken Back to Aurora, Illinois, by Officer.

In the custody of Officer Bets, of Aurora, Ill., Harley Martin, 17, who was arrested Saturday on a charge of larceny at his home in this city, was taken to the Illinois city, where he will face a charge of grand larceny.

According to Officer Bets, young Martin stole $34 from his employer while working in that city. He was given the money to pay a lumber bill, but failed to return after going on the errand. Although the theft of this amount of money in the state of Ohio is a larceny charge, in the state of Illinois it is grand larceny. Although arrested on a request of the Illinois officials, when the officers visited his home in Lima, a number of bicycles were found, which police believe to have been stolen. Three whole bicycles and parts of several others were confiscated and taken to police headquarters to await identification.

Charles Martin, 13, was arrested yesterday and will be held pending the investigation of the bicycles found at the Martin home. He is a brother of the lad taken to the Illinois city. Police claim that there are several other lads that will be arrested for their connection in the bicycle case.

WIFE IN PENNSY. MAN ASKS DIVORCE

Robert I. Spurr, pattern-maker, of 302 West North street, says his wife, Rose Ural Spurr, failed to get up in the morning and pack his dinner pail and that she contrived means whereby she sought the home of her parents in Philadelphia, Pa., and that after they went to live with her parents, her sister and mother, by word and deed, helped the wife in making life miserable for him, in an action for divorce, filed this morning.

They were married in St. Louis on March 9, 1915. Five weeks afterward they lived in Lima, then went to the home of her parents in Philadelphia. He states that in June of last year they decided between themselves to return to Lima, but although he came and secured employment and sent money for her to join him, she refused and still refuses to come here. She resides at 4508 North Smedley street, Philadelphia. Service will be by publication.

U. S. FLEET HAVING COAST MANEUVERS ALONG ATLANTIC

Evolutions and Drills Began Last Week and Will Go on All Summer.

All Classes of Ships Will Take Part in Practice Exercises.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Beginning Monday, the Atlantic fleet of Uncle Sam's navy started out and began cutting circles around itself to show the American people what it really can do in the way of scrapping. The exhibition, in one form or another, will continue until November 1.

The official program provides for fleet and divisional exercises off the north Atlantic coast in the vicinity of Newport, together with a war game in conjunction with the army from July 24 to 29.

Target practice will be held on the southern drill grounds from September 1 to 30, after which the fleet will be scattered to the home ports for docking and minor repairs.

First the battleships of the fleet will operate singly for steaming trials and similar individual operations, after which, on May 20, the divisions of the fleet will assemble as follows:

The battleship Wyoming and first division at Tompkinsville, the second division in the North river, the third division at Rockport and the fourth division at Newport. After divisional exercises lasting five days the divisions will return to these bases, except that the flagship and first division will go to Hampton roads instead of Tompkinsville.

Beginning on June 3 divisional exercises will again be held, the battleships again returning to these bases on June 10, on which date the flagship and the first division will return to Tompkinsville.

After five days spent in divisional exercises, from June 12 to June 17, the entire fleet will reassemble at Newport on June 17 for squadron exercises off Newport from June 18 to July 1. The week from July 1 to 8 will be spent in the usual Fourth of July calls at Atlantic coast ports for local celebrations. On July 8 the battleships will again mobilize at Narragansett bay and on July 10 will spend a five-day period in fleet exercises.

Returning to Narragansett bay on July 15, the next four weeks will be spent at anchor for machinery overhaul, ship drills and inspections, with the exception of five days from July 24 to 29, when the divisions will operate in a war game in an assigned area. Torpedo exercises will also be held, and the mining division and destroyers will engage in joint exercises.

One division of destroyers will cooperate with the army in joint operations in testing the defenses of eastern New York. Tactical exercises of the fleet will begin again on August 12, when the battleships will return to Narragansett bay for machinery overhauling, ship drills, coaling and provisions and conferences at the Naval war college preparatory to strategic maneuvers from August 20 to September 1, when the entire fleet will proceed to the southern drill grounds for target practice until September 30, when the fleet will disperse to the home ports.

The mining division of the fleet will assemble in the North river and will cruise and engage in exercises on May 22 off New Haven, on June 1 off Providence, and on June 5 off Plymouth, Mass. After a brief call at Boston this mining division will continue its exercises off Salem, Cape Ann, Gloucester and Rockport until July 1. The Vestal and Solace will base on Newport and will move according to the needs of the fleet. The vessels of the active destroyer flotilla upon the completion of repairs will make a reconnaissance of the New England coast, after which they will assemble at Gardner's bay and prepare to participate in the fleet operations in Narragansett bay. The active flotilla will hold target practice in Narragansett bay from September 1 to November 1. The reserve destroyer flotilla will continue on neutrality, aviation and naval militia duty. From July 1 to August 30 summer submarine exercises will be held from the base at New London, during which torpedo practice, quarterly engineering runs and oscillator tests will be held. The cruiser squadron of the Atlantic fleet will continue police and patrol duty and will join in the fleet operations and hold target practice as opportunity presents. No schedule of docking and overhauling is pieced by the navy department because of the uncertainty of their periods of service.

How to Prevent Croup.
Every effort should be made to prevent the attacks by giving the child a light supper and plenty of fresh air at all times. The child should be warmly clad when out of doors. Especially the feet should be well protected and under no circumstances should the child be allowed to remain with wet or cold feet. Then watch for the first symptoms, hoarseness, and give Chamberlain's Cough Remedy at once and the attack may be warded off. This remedy is a favorite with the mothers of croupy children and can always be depended upon. It is pleasant and safe to take. Obtainable everywhere.

"WHAT ROTARY IS"

The convention of the International Association of Rotary clubs, at Cincinnati, July 16-20, with its attendant expenditure of more than $500,000 for transportation, hotel bills and entertainment, has aroused a great deal of general public interest. Rotary is less than ten years old, and, as an international organization, it lifted its head among the great American organizations only a couple of years ago. The Cincinnati convention entertainment committee has arranged to entertain 7,000 people at the 1916 convention, and as this number is more than three times as great as the attendance last year, there must be a reason. Cincinnati's central location will have much to do with the increase in attendance, but there is an inner meaning, which has been obtained by R. E. Logsdon, special correspondent, in an interview with Ralph A. Tingle, president of the Cincinnati Rotary club.

Rotary," says Mr. Tingle, "is an ever-widening circle of influence for good. As a stone dropped into a placid pool causes the waves to ripple over its surface, so Rotary, responsibility and discharge that duty, so when I have ended each of them I shall have lifted the level of human ideals and achievements a little higher than I found them."

Rotarians the world over are proud to subscribe to such sentiments as these and are proud to let the world know that they are lending their time and efforts toward the betterment of their fellows—not their fellow-men, whoever and whatever they may be. A Rotarian believes himself to be not more obligated to a brother Rotarian than he is to every other man in human society, because the genius of Rotary lies not in its competition, but in its co-operation, and Rotarians assert that human rights are not confined to Rotary clubs, but are as deep and broad as the race itself.

There are no secrets in Rotary, no obligations other than to attend meetings with a certain degree of regularity, for it is through this "get together" spirit that Rotary hopes to give man a better understanding of each other.

Some have the idea that Rotary is organized for the purpose of promoting the business interests of its members through trade. This is incorrect, except insofar as the acquaintances acquired and friendships made through frequent meetings of the same group of men may result in business relations between them.

Rotary is unique in its organization in that only one firm in a given list may be represented in a local club, and not to exceed two members from the same firm. This plan is followed, not for selfish reasons, but rather because it has been thought that the men thus brought together under the banner of service can, because of the compactness of the organization, the oneness of purpose, better present the ideals and work out the ideas for which Rotary stands.

The Rotary idea of fellowship and helpfulness is spreading—men are coming to see and understand that the success they attain, the happiness they enjoy, are largely dependent upon the friendships they make along life's way, and Rotary has done and is doing its part in building up the brotherhood of man through service.

For, after all, the big idea of Rotary is service. It is helping men to serve themselves, to serve their fellows, to serve the communities in which they live, to serve Him who taught that real service comes through love.

Finally, Rotary teaches that service which gives rather than seeks to receive; that service which bids you:

"Give to the world the best you have. And the best will come back to you."

Allen D. Albert, Minneapolis, President

launched some ten years ago into the great sea of humanity, has created great waves of fellowship, which have rolled on and on, carrying thousands of men to achievement and success. The Rotary code of ethics says: "My business standards shall have in them a note of sympathy for our common humanity. My business dealings, ambitions and relations shall always cause me to take into consideration my highest duty as a member of society. In every position in business life, in every responsibility that comes before me, my chief thought shall be to fill that

Woodrow Wilson, Theodore Roosevelt, William Jennings Bryan, Diogenes W. Atlee Pomerene and Nicholas Longworth will attend the Rotary club dinner at the Elks' club this evening, in honor of Myron T. Herrick. Not in person, that is, but in burlesque will they speak and perform. The only statesman to attend personally will be the former ambassador himself.

Rotarians are noted for clever burlesque and caricature, and plans announced for this evening indicate that the cabaret features will be better than anything that has yet been attempted at a Rotary gathering. Each of the characters named above will be represented by some member with personal characteristics well suited to the burlesque, and the addresses written for them are said to include witticisms of a varied nature. Each is expected to relate some experience or discuss some problem identified with the assumed character, thus affording an opportunity for clever monologue work.

Seats are at a premium because of the unusual interest attaching to the first visit of former Ambassador Herrick in recent years. His talk will not be of a political nature, but and clothing sufferers, will be the affected region. Hospital and field work, as well as provisioning will be devoted to a relation of his experiences in France during the first months of the present European war. As he was personally instrumental in solving the task of providing passage home for Americans in the belligerent zone, his information is firsthand.

Another feature of the address to be delivered by the former governor is the relief work of the American Red Cross surgeons and nurses in quashed at length. Covers will be laid for 200, which will permit the invitation of a limited number of guests.

Great Rafts of Willow and Stones Fill in Barrier
Breaks.

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands, May 22.—The tri-color of the Netherlands has been hoisted along the shores of the Zuider Zee to celebrate the fact that "the Dutch have taken Holland;" that is, they have regained possession of most of the territory that the sea wrested from them by the disastrous floods of last January.

The great breaches that were torn in the dikes have at length been securely filled in through the unremitting labor of an army of workmen and big suction pumps driven by high-powered electric motors are pouring 3,000 cubic meters of flood water over the sea side of the embankments every minute. Working day and night it is expected they will have drained early in June most of the big lake that now covers some 2,000 acres of meadow, and surround some of 20,000 people in the region known as Waterland, north of Amsterdam.

In all, 200,000,000 cubic meters of sea water invaded the Netherlands during the January storm. Down to a certain level 40,000,000 cubic meters were blown by favorable winds back into the Zuider Zee and the North Sea canal, but that limit having been reached, the government and provincial authorities still had a small ocean of water to remove by pumps.

Regiments of workmen were first detailed to build emergency dikes at all the breached points. The method of accomplishing this was to construct rafts of large sheaves of willow twigs, firmly plated together, and when these rafts were strong enough to bear the weight of a squad of workmen, they were cemented with sand and clay, and finally sunk in the gaps by tipping a load of stone on top of them. In places the dikes were 40 feet deep. At Utterdam as many as nine such layers of raft and material had to be sunk before the breaches were filled up.

While the repair of the dikes was in progress miles of electric cable were laid to Monnikendam and Utterdam, where enormous centrifugal pumps were later mounted, and the country was scoured for motors powerful enough to drive the latter. For it was out of the question to obtain such motors from abroad at the time.

At Utterdam is the largest of the pumps, which has three huge pipes, together swallowing a thousand cubic meters of water a minute. At numerous other places there are smaller pumps, with an aggregate of 1,120-horse power, removing 3,000 cubic meters of water a minute. Early in May the north Holland countryside, that is the higher situated land, will have been thoroughly drained, though the "polders" or basins, calculated to hold 45,000,000 cubic meters of water, will have to be each separately drained, and for this purpose a dozen additional pumping stations have been established.

The removal of the water by no means repairs the flood's effects. There are upward of 2,500 homesteads and other buildings that will have to be rebuilt and repaired and there is the more serious fact that the whole of this agricultural land will have been saturated with salt by the sea water. Opinions differ as to the length of time it will take to get rid of the salt, but much ground will yield no crop this year, and it is certain that the salt will not have been washed away in its entirety for a long time to come.

It is likely that the costly experience will stimulate the Dutchman's ardor to tackle, when the war is over, the great scheme of building a barrier right across the entrance of the Zuider Zee itself, and so creating a new twelfth province for Queen Wilhelmina's realm.

At numerous other places there are smaller pumps, with an aggregate of 1,120-horse power, removing 3,000 cubic meters of water a minute. Early in May the north Holland countryside, that is the higher situated land, will have been thoroughly drained, though the "polders" or basins, calculated to hold 45,000,000 cubic meters of water, will have to be each separately drained, and for this purpose a dozen additional pumping stations have been established.

The removal of the water by no means repairs the flood's effects. There are upward of 2,500 homesteads and other buildings that will have to be rebuilt and repaired and there is the more serious fact that the whole of this agricultural land will have been saturated with salt by the sea water. Opinions differ as to the length of time it will take to get rid of the salt, but much ground will yield no crop this year, and it is certain that the salt will not have been washed away in its entirety for a long time to come.

It is likely that the costly experience will stimulate the Dutchman's ardor to tackle, when the war is over, the great scheme of building a barrier right across the entrance of the Zuider Zee itself, and so creating a new twelfth province for Queen Wilhelmina's realm.

Install Big Electric Pumps
to Drain Lands Dikes Didn't Protect.

Great Rafts of Willow and Stones Fill in Barrier
Breaks.

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands, May 22.—The tri-color of the Netherlands has been hoisted along the shores of the Zuider Zee to celebrate the fact that "the Dutch have taken Holland;" that is, they have regained possession of most of the territory that the sea wrested from them by the disastrous floods of last January.

The great breaches that were torn in the dikes have at length been securely filled in through the unremitting labor of an army of workmen and big suction pumps driven by high-powered electric motors are pouring 3,000 cubic meters of flood water over the sea side of the embankments every minute. Working day and night it is expected they will have drained early in June most of the big lake that now covers some 2,000 acres of meadow, and surround some of 20,000 people in the region known as Waterland, north of Amsterdam.

In all, 200,000,000 cubic meters of sea water invaded the Netherlands during the January storm. Down to a certain level 40,000,000 cubic meters were blown by favorable winds back into the Zuider Zee and the North Sea canal, but that limit having been reached, the government and provincial authorities still had a small ocean of water to remove by pumps.

Regiments of workmen were first detailed to build emergency dikes at all the breached points. The method of accomplishing this was to construct rafts of large sheaves of willow twigs, firmly plated together, and when these rafts were strong enough to bear the weight of a squad of workmen, they were cemented with sand and clay, and finally sunk in the gaps by tipping a load of stone on top of them. In places the dikes were 40 feet deep. At Utterdam as many as nine such layers of raft and material had to be sunk before the breaches were filled up.

While the repair of the dikes was in progress miles of electric cable were laid to Monnikendam and Utterdam, where enormous centrifugal pumps were later mounted, and the country was scoured for motors powerful enough to drive the latter. For it was out of the question to obtain such motors from abroad at the time.

At Utterdam is the largest of the pumps, which has three huge pipes, together swallowing a thousand cubic meters of water a minute. At numerous other places there are smaller pumps, with an aggregate of 1,120-horse power, removing 3,000 cubic meters of water a minute. Early in May the north Holland countryside, that is the higher situated land, will have been thoroughly drained, though the "polders" or basins, calculated to hold 45,000,000 cubic meters of water, will have to be each separately drained, and for this purpose a dozen additional pumping stations have been established.

IT'S MOST IMPORTANT

Flush Your System Before Breakfast. Feel Better Right Away.

You should understand the importance of keeping the system clean. Dirt on the skin is not absorbed into the blood but the sour waste in the bowels is taken up by the blood and is the cause of most of your ailments.

When you are constipated the waste from your food lies in your bowels and sours, giving off gas and poison which causes your headaches, blotchy, pimply skin; foul breath and coated tongue.

Keep your system clean with Tollo Water, then your food will go into a fresh, clean stomach and be digested without distress. The nourishment will be extracted and sent clean and fresh to every nerve and muscle.

Modern physicians prescribe Tollo Water instead of drugs because it acts in Nature's way. Every year they send thousands of sufferers from Constipation, Stomach and Liver troubles to Dawson Springs, Kentucky, to drink it just as it comes from the ground. It cleans and refreshes the system without irritation.

For a few cents your druggist will sell you a large bottle. You should start tomorrow morning by pouring out about a third of a tumbler of Tollo Water, and filling the glass with plain water, and drink it before breakfast. After the first glass you will experience that clean, refreshed feeling inside, and by keeping it up you can banish constipation and stomach trouble clean out of your life.

TIME TO SETTLE IT

In the Fourth congressional district Democratic political affairs have reached a stage where something definite must supplant the underground reports of the last two years. The results of the 1914 campaign are too well known to necessitate rehearsal, but since that time there have been rumors and charges emanating from both factions which should be brought to light and settled before many days pass.

Mr. Goeke, whose defeat in the primary of August 11 of that year by alleged reprehensible means, was followed by the choice of J. E. Russell in the November election, has published accusations against his rival, Mr. Cunningham. He states that the latter injected into the fight the question of denominationalism.

A Columbus weekly paper recently accused Mr. Goeke of being the instigator of the movement. It is high time for the Democrats of the Fourth district to know the truth. Behind-the-scenes activity is getting out-of-date. The facts should be made public, properly before the entries close, for in case the evidence forces the withdrawal of either from the race new men should be allowed a chance to enter. If Mr. Cunningham is guilty he deserved what he got in the election. If he is innocent his rival is a "sore-head" and a bolter.

We suggest that a showdown be made, and publicly at that. Mr. Cunningham, according to those who are in a position to know, was not aware of the tactics adopted by few of his managers, and he should make that plain before starting his campaign. Mr. Goeke avers that the Bluffton man was aware of the weapons which his managers employed.

Thus a question of veracity is up for settlement, and the voters should know whom to believe. If one man or the other is discredited he should abandon hope of getting any support in the Fourth district, for the party cannot nominate a liar. With accusations and denials afloat there must be one.

Come, Mr. Goeke, substantiate your statements or retract. Come, Mr. Cunningham, lay your cards face up on the table. The Democrats of the Fourth want to know the truth, and both men must come forward with their cases. The party will serve as a jury, and the evidence is due.

COLLEGIATE NARROWNESS

An alumnus of Yale has kicked up a curious discussion in the quaint old town of New Haven. One "Dutch" Carter, importance and influence unknown, objects to the action of the faculty in inviting Mme. Gadsdell to sing in the great arena known as the "bowling" on the ground that her husband is under indictment as a German spy engaged in passport frauds and the organization of strikes in munition factories.

Now what has the indictment of the husband to do with the propriety of inviting the celebrated singer to perform in the stadium made famous by repeated defeats administered by Brickley and Mahan of Harvard? The alleged spy has not been convicted, and American law considers him innocent until a jury of his peers announces him guilty. But what if he were guilty? Would that spoil the melodious voice of Mme. Gadsdell? Is it a crime for a woman to be the wife of a convicted criminal? Sympathy should be with such a woman, and it generally is until the point of association is reached.

The real point in the matter is that "Dutch" Carter, Yale '91, represents and reflects that narrow aristocratic conservatism which clamps the Eastern under life to a great degree. That is the spirit which affects the "holier than thou" attitude, making only the ideas of Mayflower ancestry eligible for the "exclusive" clubs such as Scroll, Bones and the rest. It is the spirit of Eastern collegiate campuses, which tolerates nothing but the silk-stocking, blue-blooded, self-centered, narrow-minded East, particularly New England. We cannot place "Dutch" Carter, but at a rough guess we will venture an opinion that there is not enough space between his eyes for a hypodermic injection.

The Yale "howl" is all right for perspiring gridiron gladiators who roll in the mud and slug one another when the furtive eye of the referee is turned away, and no alumna has yet objected to ribald variety shows or glee club concerts with nonsensical songs. It would not sound impossible if the story should appear that the famous concrete arena sheltered nocturnal keg parties, and the chances are that the statue of old Eli could relate some other tales if endowed with the power of speech. But because Mme. Gadsdell is a foreigner, wife of an accused nobleman, belonging to the working class because of her connection with the Metropolitan opera house, and in sympathy with a beligerent power not admired by the product of the New Haven institution for the prevention of learning, she is subjected to wide criticism and the actions of the faculty watched with closest scrutiny.

It sounds like a press agent story. If we were not occasionally brought face to face with similar examples of New England narrowness, and especially that form of narrowness which obtains in Eastern university circles of the conservative sort, it would appear incredible. Yale can be proud of Tom Shavlin and Ted Coy and other notable athletes, but the chances are that Eli is not overenthusiastic over "Dutch" Carter of the class of '91.

George B. Cox is dead. His passing recalls the manners in which Harding was nominated for gubernatorial honors in 1910. And while the present generation denounced Cox as a corrupt boss it has elected to the senate his last state candidate and the man who could "yield defence and devotion to George B. Cox of Hamilton county" in 1903. If there was anything wrong with the Cincinnati boss, is it logical to assume that he would pick an angel to represent him?

There is one good feature about the new primary law—candidates will not hand out that old song-and-dance about being drafted by their friends. The petition blank knocks that over with a sworn statement of candidacy.

Concrete has been suggested as a good food for poultry, a scientist stating that it would be better than lime in forming eggshells. Will the time come when father will need a drill to open his medium boiled at breakfast?

As Cunningham and Goeke are locked in a war of no small amount of heat, why not stage a verbal bout between T. P. Riddle and Dr. F. M. Hunt?

NEW NOTES FROM MOVIELAND By DAISY DEAN

THE advent of hot weather has not influenced Holbrook Blinn to take life any easier. Just at present he is working at the World studio in "The Prima Donna's Husband", which will be released next month, and at the same time is co-starring with Margaret Anglin in "A Woman of No Importance" at a Broadway theatre.

Like so many stars of the legitimate stage, Mr. Blinn hails from San Francisco. He was educated there and at Leland Stanford university. He first went into business, but soon found he could not be happy except on the stage. His rise has been gradual, but today his friends insist that he has earned the right to wear the histrionic toga of the late Richard Mansfield.

As Odd "Mr. Goodie", Hopper isn't bad.

"Mr. Goodie, the Samaritan" is the title of De Wolf Hopper's third Triangle picture, which will be released the last of this month. Fay Tincher, previously the huge comedian's pet title foil in "Don Quixote" and "Sunshine Dad", again has the principal feminine role.

Hopper is Alphonse Irving Goodie, a philanthropic character whose wife and daughter are snobbish. Having discharged the chauffeur for some petty reason the Goodies start on a motor trip with the daughter. Evelyn at the wheel. She is soon replaced by her father and trouble begins. He stalls the engine and later throws in the reverse, the car bumps a tree and catches on fire. Father, mother and daughter escape and start to walk the two miles to their destination. On the way they are picked up by a crook who has stolen a machine. He sells it to Goodie who is arrested for the theft and thrown into jail. Conditions here are so vile that he is moved to reform all jails. He invites a pair of crooks to a party, at which the man who sold him the automobile is also present. On this foundation Hopper and his associates erect an elaborate structure of fun.

"Aramadale", a screen version of Wilkie Collins' famous novel of the same name, will be the first of the new three-reel Gaumont features to be released through the Mutual. Iva Shepard, famous "vampire", and Alexander Gaden are the featured players. It will be released May 25. Lucille Taft, Kathleen Butler, Henry W. Pemberton, John Macklin, John Reinhard, Charles H. Travis, Henry Chira and James Levering are included in the supporting cast.

Mother love, which inspires an all-encompassing sacrifice, is the theme of "The Courtesan", a Mutual Masterpiece from the American Studios. Eugenie Forde, long a favorite with Mutual followers, is seen in the leading role—that of a mother who sacrifices all that her son may rise to political leadership. The piece was staged under the direction of Arthur Maude.

TRAVELETTE BY NIKSAH.

THE GREAT DESERT.

No land on earth has exercised such a spell on the imagination of humanity as the immense belt of waterless sand and mirage that stretches across northern Africa. The desert is synonymous with mystery, with quick death and long suffering, with strange creeds and strange adventure. It is no wonder that the real facts of a really wonderful region should have been almost lost in a log of legend.

The Sahara is the world's greatest desert, the most cruel and barren of tracts on the earth's surface. Yet it supports hundreds of thousands of inhabitants, it has been the dwelling-place of great tribes since the beginning of history. It has its recognized trade routes, crossing barren swells as ship-routes cross the featureless swells of the sea. It has its ports where there is shade and water, as well known to men of the seas as far sea islands are known to mariners.

The name Sahara is an Arabian term, and is applied by the desert folk only to the high table-lands in the northern and western part of Africa, where there is a scant pasture for flocks and water is comparatively easy to find. The real desert, the low sandy infinitude stretching all the way to the tropic Sudan, the Arabs call simply "the South." It is through this "South" that the caravan-routes run from middle Africa to the Mediterranean, their course marked at every mile by the white bones of men and animals which the shifting sands cover and uncover.

Even here there are wells and palm-trees at intervals where the caravans halt for rest and the wandering tribes make long encampments. These wells mean life in the desert; they play a leading part in all desert existence. A man's wealth is reckoned in the number of wells he owns. In time of war the possession of a well spells defeat or victory, and there is always war in the desert. The feeding Arab poisons the wells behind him, so that his pursuer arrives spent and parched to die by the side of the putrid, useless water.

Travel in the desert casts a strange spell over the voyager. The long changeless hours with the soft hoofs of the camels padding noiselessly over the yielding sand, the blinding blue sky, the dancing mirage in the distance, combine to produce a state almost hypnotic. At night a little cool breeze springs up, rustling the dry shifting dunes and the leaves of the palm trees. The great stars hang low overhead and the cry of some wandering beast floats through the silence like the very voice of mystery. It is no wonder, that, as the Arabs say, he who has known the desert always returns.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Marines were mobilized at Norfolk and Boston today preparatory to sailing for Santo Domingo to strengthen Rear Admiral Caperton's forces in pelting that republic where political disturbances have occurred recently. Three hundred will sail immediately from Norfolk aboard the cruiser Tennessee and a small force from Boston aboard the cruiser Salem. In addition, five hundred marines, now in Haiti, by order of Admiral Caperton, will go to Santo Domingo. The movement of the marines is in response to a cable to the navy department from Admiral Caperton requesting further reinforcements. HEALTHHINTS IF RESISTANCE IS SLOW GERMS BRING DISEASE

By infection is meant the entrance into the body of living agents capable of multiplying and causing disease. The symptoms of such infectious diseases are developed by the toxins or poisons produced by the invading germs.

If these are strong enough to overcome the resistance which the normal body attempts to raise, severe illness or even death results. But the toxin in any case cannot multiply itself and the disease cannot be communicated from person to person without the living agents which manufacture that toxin. A specific infective cause has been found for each of a large number of diseases.

Many infectious germs may be found upon the skin and mucous membranes. They produce no disease in the individual.

In this way the germs of diphtheria, pneumonia, influenza and other diseases may be found on the surface of the body. They produce disease only under favorable conditions, when the bars of local or general resistance are let down.

"THE HOUSE OF BETTER CLOTHES"

AUTO THIEF IS NOW TRACED BY POLICE EXPERT

Special Traffic Officers Identify Machines That Speed Like Wind.

MARKS THAT TELL

Stolen Cars Disposed of in Places Far From the Owners' Home.

NEW YORK, May 20.—Suppose that you were a traffic policeman stationed at Brooklyn bridge, in New York City. A continual stream of automobiles is flashing past you, fifteen or twenty to the minute. How many of those cars do you think you could identify by make and model, in addition to performing the regular duties of regulating traffic? How much chance do you think you would have for selecting say, a 1913 Hudson from the ranks, and identifying it as a car stolen two weeks before.

That is the sort of problem that the police of every big city are finding before them, and New York is attacking it in an organized manner. Her 250 patrolmen on traffic duty at the city outlets are being given a unique special course in lightning automobile identification. Run twenty different cars past one of these trained men at thirty miles an hour and he will call you the name of the factory and the year of the model as surely as an artist names colors. Give him even a fleeting glimpse of some car vanishing around a distant corner, and the chances are he can tell you its name and whether it is this year's model or last. Some idea of what this means is given by the fact that there are over a hundred different makes of automobiles driven in the New York streets, and practically every one of these makes has been issued in several different models.

The immense growth of the automobile business has brought other problems with it besides the high cost of gasoline. One of the chief of these is the new thief—the motor thief. His favorite field of operations is the big city, and for years he has been reaping a rich and easy harvest. New York's new school for policemen is one big step toward putting an end to his activity.

The motor thief finds the actual stealing of a car the easiest part of his business. It is when he comes to sell it that he encounters real difficulties. That is where the eagle-eyed traffic policeman gets his lining. For the thief is practically forced to take the stolen auto out of the city before he can safely dispose of it. In the limits of Manhattan, the metropolitan police are so thoroughly conversant with the situation, with the addresses of all the "fences" and easy-moraled second-hand dealers who might buy a stolen car if they could get it cheap enough, that the machine is pretty certain to be recovered if it is sold in town. Once it has passed into the country at large, however, the advantages are all with the thief. An automobile is a highly movable piece of property when it is running right, and he may easily take it a thousand miles before he tries to sell it. An instance is on record where a gang of thieves stole cars in New York and sold them in Kentucky.

The logical point to catch the thief is just as he leaves the city in the stolen car. In order to do this, it is necessary for the policeman on duty to be able to recognize the stolen machine from its description at a glance, in addition to performing all his ordinary duties, which are no light ones. The problem is further complicated by the fact that there may be a dozen stolen cars unaccounted for at once and the guardian of the law has to be on the lookout for every one of them.

It was found that the average policeman was confronted with a hopeless task. He had no special training in this line, and dozens of different makes and models of automobiles are so nearly alike that even the layman who is a motorist can not identify more than a few of them. It was necessary to work out some simple system by which any car could be recognized at a glance, at any hour of the day or night. An old, experienced chauffeur can tell the make and model of most automobiles, but he goes on no particular system. His years of work with the machines have fixed the general lines of different makes in his mind until he can name the car in question, but it would take too long to train a policeman to the necessary degree of efficiency on this plan.

The method decided on was the selection of the significant detail. The class of policeman is instructed in the little individual peculiarities of each make of car—the things that the untrained eye would never notice. They are also given the outline of a logical plan of quick thinking, which in a short time becomes automatic with the man directing the rush of traffic.

No two makes or models of automobiles are precisely alike in the little things. The position of the tail-light alone is enough to identify a score of cars. Some carry it in the center, some on the left side, some have it swung almost on the level of the rear axle, others carry it high up on the body. On other makes it is placed so far to the left that it is in line with the left mud-guard. There are a score of such details on every car that tell a story to the trained eye. The shape of the radiator and its cap, the height of the headlights, the position of the extra tire or its rack, and the cut of the wind-shield are only a few of them.

The policeman has all these details fixed in his mind. As each car passes him in the stream of traffic he lets his eye run over it until he encounters a point that eliminates it from the problem, and then he passes on to the next. With a little practice he does this automatically, subconsciously, while his conscious attention may be taken up with some other duty of regulating traffic.

In actual practice, he starts a little farther back than the observation of details, and his task is correspondingly easier. He knows whether the car is looking for a light in the light, medium or heavy class. If he is looking for a Packard, he can eliminate most of the passing machines on the score of size alone. Dealing only with the heavy cars, his problem is at once narrowed down. Among the heavy models, he knows that the Packard carries its tail light far over to the left, on the left mud-guard, while the Pierce Arrow, another possibility, is eliminated by the fact that the tail light is placed at a point opposite the middle of the rear axle. He notes the other minor points, the size of the doors, the gasoline tank, and so on, until he has positively identified the make and model he is looking for. Then he may stop the suspected machine while he consults the description of the stolen car, giving individual peculiarities such as a dented mud-guard or a mended top.

The most difficult car to recover is one of a cheap and common model, of which there are many thousands on the streets. In fact, recent police experience shows that most of the thefts are being confined to such machines. A favorite device of motor thieves is the rebuilding of several stolen cars by exchanging parts from one to the other. Such work in the case of the more expensive models is much more difficult than in the case of a cheap machine, and calls for an expert mechanic. Most of the men at once able and unscrupulous enough for the business have been landed behind the bars. It is also much easier to identify a big, expensive car than one of a cheap and correspondingly common model. Hence thieves are working almost entirely in the latter class.

This practice of interchanging parts from different cars suggests a step by which the owner can be of great assistance in the recovery of stolen property and the conviction of the offender. He can make a note of the factory number of every part of his car—not only the motor, but the magneto, the carburetor, and so on. He can mark the body in some inconspicuous place in a distinguishing way. Thus he will be able to swear not only to his machine as a whole, if it has been stolen and a suspect taken, but also to any part of it. He can give the police something to work on.

The motor thief is rarely caught in the act of taking a car. He has his business too well systematized for that. He does not step into an attractive looking machine and drive off with it. His usual procedure is to observe carefully the habits of the owner. He makes himself familiar with the routine of the latter. He then selects a moment when the car is habitually left standing before a certain door for some time, so that he can count on not being surprised and on having an hour or so to get well out of the neighborhood. He supplies himself with a switch-key for starting if the one in the car is removable, or with a key to open the lock if the switch is locked. Then he drives to his garage, makes as many alterations in the appearance of the car as he deems necessary, and after a few days motors leisurely out of the city to some country town where he makes a sacrifice sale. His great problem is to get safely out of metropolitan limits. That is where the newly trained traffic policeman comes in.

Another wise move in fighting the motor thief is being made in the elimination of the reward system. Formerly the great idea of the owner, or of the company which insured the car against theft, was to get the machine back and no questions asked. A man or an insurance company losing a three thousand dollar car was much more anxious to recover it than to convict the thief. A liberal reward would be advertised along with a promise to drop the matter if the car were returned. Such a policy was badly mistaken and shortsighted. Many of the thieves made a practice of stealing cars for the express purpose of returning them on the offer of a reward and a promise of safety.

Now the insurance companies have agreed to offer no more rewards in New York City, and as practically every car is insured against theft, they have the situation in their own hands. By taking a few losses for the moment, they are co-operating with the police to break up the whole system. The motor thief has had a prosperous and romantic day, but the end is in sight.

The method decided on was the selection of the significant detail. The class of policeman is instructed in the little individual peculiarities of each make of car—the things that the untrained eye would never notice. They are also given the outline of a logical plan of quick thinking, which in a short time becomes automatic with the man directing the rush of traffic.

No two makes or models of automobiles are precisely alike in the little things. The position of the tail-light alone is enough to identify a score of cars. Some carry it in the center, some on the left side, some have it swung almost on the level of the rear axle, others carry it high up on the body. On other makes it

CENTRAL CHURCH OF CHRIST HAS GREAT HOME-COMING DAY

Fifth Anniversary of Occupation of New Structure is Celebrated.

Pastor House Leads People in All-Day Series of Services.

Former ministers and members from a distance and a representative assembly of the present membership of the Central Church of Christ vied in the home-coming festivities, held at the church on West North street, yesterday. About 300 people from out of the city were present during the day.

At the noon hour a picnic dinner was served, members bringing well-filled baskets, the contents of which were spread upon long tables and all present partook of the meal. Mrs. O. D. Sullivan and her class of young women served the dinner.

Ministers present from out of the city were the Rev. George W. Watson, of Lafayette, Ind., who was pastor prior to the coming of the Rev. A. B. Houze, present pastor; the Rev. W. A. Brundige, of Bluffton, former pastor here, and the Rev. Charles Richards, of Lancaster, who while in Lima was affiliated with the Y. M. C. A. and later entered the ministry, and the Rev. D. W. Fletcher, of Vaughnsville, who is a member of the Central church.

The South Side Church of Christ, Auglaize and Garfield chapels, Bluffton and Beavertown congregations were largely represented at the services, which lasted throughout the day, marking the anniversary of the fifth year of entrance into the present handsome church building.

Souvenirs of the occasion were distributed to those in attendance yesterday, containing a photograph of the church, the cuts of the Revs. J. N. Scholes, Homer W. Carpenter, W. A. Brundige, C. A. Hill and George W. Watson, former pastors, a short historical sketch, with the names of members, the amount paid by each for current and benevolent purposes and a statement of the church as to receipts and disbursements from January 1, 1915, until January 1, of this year. A statement of missions for the same time, with receipts and disbursements and names of the official board and standing committees of the church, together with a cut of the Rev. A. B. Houze, present pastor, was also included.

History of Church. It was on September 6, 1869, at the home of H. W. Lewis on West North street, eight disciples met in a prayer service and covenanted to hold prayer meetings from house to house and keep the ordinances of Christ, as set forth in the New Testament Scriptures.

Dr. W. T. Moore, pastor of Walnut Street Church of Christ, in Cincinnati, on November 29, 1869, was invited to hold a brief series of meetings in Lima. He preached four sermons in the German Reformed church on West Wayne street, and on December 2, 1869, effected the organization of the Church of Christ with 16 charter members. This faithful band constituted the nucleus of the Central Church of Christ.

Early the next year Thomas Munnell, corresponding secretary of American Christian Missionary society, held a two weeks' meeting in the German Reformed chapel. In May of the same year N. A. Walker conducted a ten days' meeting and the following October, Isaac Erret, editor of the Christian Standard, held a two weeks' revival. The three meetings resulted in 36 additions to the church.

In April of 1871 the German Reformed chapel was rented for one-half time and on July 16, 1871, G. M. Kemp was called as pastor. For eight years he served. The Presbyterian chapel at High and West streets furnished a church home for this congregation for five years. A lot on West Wayne street was purchased and on January 9, 1876, the first church home was dedicated by Isaac Erret. For 35 years the congregation worshipped in this building.

The Wayne street property was sold in 1910 and the present location on West North street secured. The edifice now standing on this lot was consecrated on May 21, 1911. The membership numbers 700. Pastors who have served and the dates of their pastorates were: G. M. Kemp, from 1871-79, W. J. Linsman, 1890-94; I. N. Cogswell, 1894-95; J. M. Atwater, 1895-97; Fred Bell, 1897-98; J. M. Gorrell, 1898-99; C. M. Jans, 1899-90; E. S. McMiller, 1891-95; C. A. Hill, 1899-98; L. A. Chapman, 1898-99; W. A. Brundige, 1899-04; J. N. Scholes, 1904-07; H. W. Carpenter, 1908-09; G. W. Watson, 1909-12, when the present pastor took charge and has served the congregation for four years.

In the Bible school the ceremonies of celebration began, with a record attendance. This ended the campaign of the specialized Sundays. Irvin C. Brantlinger, general superintendent, was in charge.

The Rev. Mr. Brundige delivered the morning sermon. Union communion services were held in the afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The Lord's Supper was followed by an address by Attorney Thomas R. Hamilton, who welcomed the company and spoke on church work in general. Dr. Erret Gates, of Chicago University, was one of the speakers, as was the visiting ministers and former members.

In the Christian Endeavor society at 6:30 o'clock a reunion and rally was held. Mrs. R. P. Reed, leader, was in charge.

The Rev. George W. Watson, of Lafayette, Ind., spoke in the evening. Throughout the day there was special music by the chorus choir, under the direction of Miss Millie Sonntag. Miss Esther Lynch was at the organ.

Officials of Church. The Rev. A. B. Houze, present pastor, is not only greatly admired in his own church, but his efforts have been extended to the work of uplift all over the city. In everything he undertakes, he has the assistance of his good wife. Their work at Central Church has been most successful.

Thomas R. Hamilton is chairman of the official board, Ray John, clerk, Leroy Earl, assistant clerk, and H. R. Whitney, treasurer. Elders are: James Davis, H. W. Lewis, C. E. Little, J. W. Weaver, J. WILLIAMS FUNERAL IS HELD AT GOMER

Many friends from Lima made up the funeral cortege, which yesterday afternoon accompanied the body of Edward W. Williams, veteran horseman, to Gomer, where services were held at 2 o'clock in the Welsh Congregational church. Prayer services were previously held at the home at 549 South Main street, in Lima. The large church at Gomer was filled with friends of the family, assembled to pay their last tribute of respect.

The Rev. C. S. Bucher of the First Congregational of Lima and the Rev. J. Vincent Jones, pastor of the Gomer church, conducted the funeral. Music was furnished by the choir of the church at Gomer. Interment was made in the Gomer cemetery.

NO TREATING NOW AT BRITISH BARS

Saloons Only Open Five and a Half Hours Each Day.

LONDON, May 22.—The drink question is going to figure prominently in England's next national election. Liquor selling has been more and more strictly regulated from time to time, since the war began, by what is known as the 'Central Control Board (liquor traffic)'. Treating has been abolished. The 'pubs' have been trimmed down until now they may sell drinks only five and one-half hours daily. There still are further restrictions on the sale of intoxicants to be taken off from saloon premises, for home consumption.

Spirits, except by the glass, to be drunk at once, may not be sold between 2:30 p. m. Friday and noon Monday.

Whether these regulations are salutary, they have not been universally popular. Preliminary announcement of the 'five and one-half hour' rule even evoked threats from labor sources of a big strike as a protest.

Finally, however, the public acquiesced in all of them, as war measures.

Now there are beginning to be suggestions from a good many sources that the restrictions are not dictated wholly by war requirements, that a prohibition tendency is back of them, that still more drastic steps are contemplated and that rules established now will remain in force after the war is over.

There is no such anti-liquor sentiment in England, as a whole, as in some parts of the United States, and these hints are stirring up much bitter feeling.

"There will be serious unrest," said a recent issue of the London Globe, a typical English afternoon daily, "if the board goes on with its tyranny." The regulations are a national insult, the power to inflict which was obtained under false pretenses, they are being imposed unreasonably. They have apparently become part of a teetotal crusade.

There isn't a mermaid in this city, and will not do the right thing by the public. The people should keep by keeping their money in Lima.

HOW MRS. BEAN MET THE CRISIS

Carried Safely Through Change of Life by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Nashville, Tenn.—"When I was going through the Change of Life I had a tumor as large as a child's head. The doctor said it was three years coming and gave me medicine for it until I was called away from the city for some time. Of course I could not go to him, so my sister-in-law told me that she thought Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound would cure it. It helped both the Change of Life and the tumor and when I got home I did not need the doctor. I took the Pinkham remedies until the tumor was gone, the doctor said, and I have not felt it since. I tell every one how I was cured. If I tell every one how I was cured, you are welcome to use it."

Mrs. E. H. BEAN, 525 Joseph Avenue, Nashville, Tenn.

In these days, when so much is being said in praise of Shakespeare, says the Monitor, it is interesting to recall the fact that at least one notable Englishman, namely, Samuel Pepys, had seldom a good word for the great dramatist. His comment on the Shakespearean play is generally "Sorry stuff," Henry VIII. is "silly"; "Othello" is "a mean thing," and as to "Henry IV," he had patience only to hear one act. Returning from a visit to the Duke of York's Playhouse, he makes this entry in his diary. "There saw 'Twelfth Night' acted well, though it be but a silly play, and not relating at all to the name or day." Of "Midsummer Night's Dream" he writes: "To the King's theatre, where we saw 'Midsummer Night's Dream,' which I had never seen before, nor shall ever see again, for it is the most insipid, ridiculous play that ever I saw in my life."

Miss Violet Bradley, of West North street, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Bradley, will graduate June 7 from the Wallace School and Conservatory of Music at Columbus. Thursday evening, May 25, Miss

Bradley will appear in recital with Miss Ada Wenzel, also a student at the conservatory.

CREPE DE CHINE LINGERIE. There are captious critics who would have us believe that crepe de chine lingerie is a sign of the extravagance of the age. It has never occurred to them that satin, lace and other material of this character are extremely difficult to obtain, and that, when trimmed with fine lace, they cost far more than crepe de chine. Again, the new crepe de chine lingerie effect a saving on the laundress' bill, as the most courageous laundress has not the temerity to charge as much for laundering them as she does for elaborate garments of the former materials, says a writer in the Queen, London.

Those who study true, not false, economy know that there is nothing more satisfactory than crepe de chine garments. It is wonderful the novel treatment which may be introduced by the aid of hemstitching and pect edging. A new departure in underwear is the triple garment. It has the appearance of a princess petticoat, drawn in at the waist. As a matter of fact, it consists of a cambric, petticoat and knickers combined, and is put on like a coat, the legs slipped through the slots provided for them. It is fastened by a ribbon at the top, and again at the waist. Women are also wearing the American vest. It consists of two straight pieces of crepe de chine with ribbon or fabric shoulder straps. The cambric or envelope chemise is much liked.

Night attire of crepe de chine is equally satisfactory, no matter whether it takes the form of night-dress, pajama, or slumber suit. By the way, as a doubt seems to exist regarding the difference between the two latter, it should be noted that the pajama consists of two pieces, while the slumber suit is cut in one and is drawn in at the waist, ankles and wrists with smocking, or it may be by ribbon threaded through slots. The empire nightdress, which still pursues the even tenor of its way, slips on over the head. The sleeveless nightdress, about which everyone was talking a few weeks ago, has not appealed to the Englishwoman, hence little puff sleeves are added, drawn up with ribbon.

An English newspaper drew attention, recently, to the monotony characterizing the openings of speeches in the house of commons. On a set day the paper made an analysis. Forty-five speeches were delivered, and of those, thirty began with the first person singular. The analysis showed that "I beg" and "I should like" were each used four times; "I am sure" and "I wish," three times; "I would like," "I think" and "I desire," each twice; whilst "I hope," "I do not rise," "I should not," "I want to ask," "I was hoping," "I do not wish," "I have not," "I associate myself," "I agree," "I am quite sure," and "I acknowledge" were each used once. It is an interesting analysis, but the question arises, Would not an absolutely unvarying opening at once dissipate all monotony? No one ever thinks of "Ladies and Gentlemen" monotonous, because nobody ever thinks about it at all.—C. S. M.

Marrying a Butterfly

A Youth About to Marry Does Not Care for Wholesome Parental Council

"I T'S THIS WAY, mother: the position that the Scott-Frazee Co. have offered me is a very flattering one. They have opened up a new department in their business and have offered me the management of it. The initial salary is good, and if the new department pays I shall of course have a bigger salary as the business grows. It looks good to me, and I feel that I can make it pay. I am sure of it."

Ralph Gordon walked up and down the living room with his hands in his pockets. His mother followed him with a loving glance, filled with pride. His head was thrown back and the strong chin and firm mouth made her feel sure that he could bend the circumstances of his life to his purpose. She realized that it was not necessary for her to answer. In fact, the man was only half-conscious of her presence.

"I shall go on at once and try the thing out, and if all is satisfactory and I get a long term contract, I can marry." An anxious look passed over the mother's face.

"You are young yet, Ralph," she ventured. "I would be in no hurry. A man cannot make much headway financially nowadays after he is married. Get a good start before you venture on that sea."

"A start! Well, I should say I would have a start. I shall be earning a good round salary. More than the majority of men of 40 are getting, replied the son.

A very pretty dinner was given Friday evening at the home of Mrs. F. L. North, of West Spring street, assisted by Mrs. H. C. Lutz, when they entertained the executive board of the eighteenth district of the Rebekah lodge. A dainty color scheme of violet and white was carried out in the table decorations with a basket of violets, used as a centerpiece, violet candles and nut baskets. A delicious five-course dinner was served. Covers were laid for the following: Mrs. Martin Graves, vice president, of the Spencerville lodge, Mrs. H. R. Whitner, secretary, of Lima, Mrs. E. J. Bailey, past president, of Wapakoneta; Mrs. Lamason, Mrs. Raymond Morton, of St. Johns; Mrs. Bricker, of St. Marys; Mrs. Victor Frey, of Wapakoneta; Miss Pearl Barr, of St. Marys, and Mrs. B. S. Metzger, of Cridersville.

He must succeed in spite of her." Mrs. Gordon did not look at her son, for she knew any criticism of Ethel's marriage would provoke a storm.

"Let's not open that old subject," Ralph exclaimed petulantly. "You are so old-fashioned. You seem to think that a man marries a woman for what she can do. I can hire housework done and sewing done. I am not marrying a seamstress or housekeeper. I can earn enough money to allow my wife to be free from all such drudgery." Ralph had resumed his rapid march up and down the room.

"Therefore, there is need of a reserve fund for emergency, as I said before," replied his mother quickly. "Do be advised in this matter. Both of you are young."

"Mother, I am 35 and Ethel is 22. I surely think we are old enough to know what we are doing. You act always as if I were a babe in arms. It is impossible for you to realize that I am grown up."

"Perhaps I might find it easier to realize it if you could outgrow the very youthful impatience to any opposition to your wishes." She looked steadily at him as she spoke. "The time will come when you will realize that your mother has only your best interests at heart and that she finds it hard to see you making what in her judgment seem mistakes, and not warn you and try to save you the expensive lessons of experience."

"Of course, mother, I did not mean to be impatient, but I guess after all everyone must live his own life and learn by his own experience." Ralph stooped and kissed his mother's cheek.

"I guess that is so," she sighed, smiling into his face. (To be continued.)

THAT I-ME-MYSELF HABIT

Copyright 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

L IFE is the schoolmaster who forces us to learn our lessons from experience—bitter or pleasant, cruel or kind.

Several years ago, I met one of the most prominent writers in this country, and so awed was I by the very introduction to him that I do not remember even finishing my conventional sentence of "Pleased to meet you." He was very kind and, out of courtesy to Mr. Belasco, settled down to converse graciously with me.

After a few moments of hesitancy, I asked him one weak little question which had to do with the building of the modern drama. Unconsciously I had launched him upon his favorite subject of discussion and for two hours his eloquence stirred me, nor was it necessary for me to enter into the debate, opposing him at any angle. I just sat there and drank in all he had to tell me, absorbing it, conscious I was accumulating knowledge which would be of material benefit to me.

To listen well is almost as much value to one as to converse well, and this was proved to me when we parted.

"You have no idea how pleased I am that I met you," he said in all sincerity, and after I had gone it was reported to me that he turned to the group standing near him and said: "That young girl"—and he laid great emphasis upon his words—"is one of the cleverest young women I have ever met."

And thereupon I decided that in order to preserve an atmosphere of intelligence I should never try to talk upon any subject unless I was acquainted with its many phases. Don't you think that we give much more credit to the intelligent listener than we do to those who express themselves poorly, even upon subjects in which they may be well versed?

Forgive my wandering pen—it is straying far and this was meant to be a dissertation upon the "I-me-myself" habit—that honorable friend of ours who lies in wait for us at every shadowed corner—that invincible "Big I and Little You" conversationalist.

Of course we all like to talk about ourselves, and how often we let the other fellow get in his sentence edgewise so that we may fill up the paragraph, telling our experience, which is just a little bit better than his. If we performed some feat that he did, we were always much younger, much braver, much stronger than he—in fact, we enlarge upon the seed of his fabled story until

Wouldn't You Like Lighten Your Housework During the Hot Summer Months?

The dusty sweeping, the steamy drudgery of the family washing and the tedious work of ironing are all especially disagreeable to you during the hot summer months.

Many Lima women are prepared to enjoy the coming summer without having to do these toilsome things. They have installed Electric Service to help them.

When the hot, sultry days come, they will turn on the electric fan and make the house comfortable and cool.

When Monday morning rolls around, they will summon the electric washing machine and the electric iron to do their work.

Sweeping, likewise, with the electric vacuum cleaner, will be wonderfully easy and convenient.

You've been thinking for some time of having Electric Service installed. Why not do it now and be ready for a more enjoyable summer and lighter housework?

CARTER & CARROLL

We have grown the giant oak of our own.

So much fun has been made of the fisherman's "I-me-myself" yarns, but here I can fully sympathize.

Once, in California, I caught a rainbow trout. I landed him after waiting hours in the red hot sun, worn out, with aching arms, empty stomach and despairing hopes. Unhappily, he was not such a splendid specimen as had been caught, but it is the truth when I say that to me he looked as big as a speckled whale. Of course, womanlike, I wanted to throw him back into the stream when I saw him gasping on the rocks, but I knew I must carry home some trophy of my day's sport. If I had only followed the dictates of my heart, I would not have had a better story to tell upon my return to the hotel.

As the days went by and I spun my fishing yarn to all the newcomers, that trout grew larger and larger until I do not think there ever was such a monstrous fish bred in the Pacific waters.

Only one man could better this "I-me-myself" story, and he was the bear hunter of the party. There was not a grizzly who had ever growled in the high mountains that had not fled in terror from his sure-shot gun.

But there came a wag to the hotel, an old friend of the bear hunter, who told how only once he remembered when the two of them were on the trail of a cinnamon. For hours, through the thicket and brush, they followed the tracks like crafty Indians, but their reward came at dusk when they discovered Lord Bruin sitting on his haunches, licking honey from his paws, after he had dug it out of the hollow of a tree.

Around his neck was a big, decorative collar with a long rope attached to it. Just as they were about to shoot, the Italian who had lost his pet support came running around the bend of the road and captured this Lord Bruin, who wobbled peaceably along in the wake of his owner, satisfied and sleepy after his spree of freedom.

Never more could Mr. Bear Hunter entertain us with his stories of "I-me-myself, went hunting in the Sierras."

Lima Girl to Attend Chautauqua School

As a result of an enthusiastic campaign of the sub-committee of the Loan Scholarship fund of the federated clubs, Miss Naomi Shreeves will be included in the list of students who will attend the summer school of the New York chautauqua. This school gives only 25 scholarships and applicants are limited to residents of the states of Ohio, Pennsylvania and New York.

There is not a little honor connected to the selection of Miss Shreeves, who besides enjoying the distinction of being one of the 25 successful women of 500 competitors, she will be the first Lima girl to have attended the school. The scholarship is worth $50 in cash besides paying for all living expenses during the term. A great amount of credit is also due to the committee of the local scholarship fund for their earnest work.

FAUROT, TODAY ONLY.

Now under a long term contract with the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company, the beautiful and talented Marie Doro will be seen in a series of photodramas written especially for her. Her first picture, "The Heart of Nora Flynn," by Hector Turnbull and Jeanie MacPherson, authors of "The Cheat," and produced under the personal direction of Cecil B. De Mille, director general for the Lasky Company.

For a number of years Miss Doro has been on the speaking stage as a star under the management of the late Charles Frohman. She appeared in "The Morals of Marcus" and was a member of the all-star cast in the revival of the celebrated drama, "Diplomacy."

Upon her first appearance on the screen in "The Morals of Marcus," for the Famous Players Company, she created a tremendous success and was immediately claimed as one of the future photodramatic stars of the country. In subsequent productions she fully justified these prophecies.

She was recently secured by the Lasky Company and in "The Heart of Nora Flynn" will be seen as a nurse maid in charge of the two little children of a wealthy family. How she hopes to be in service only long enough to have money that she

Independents Win First Game of the Season

The Lima Independents celebrated the opening of the season yesterday with a victory over the fast Springfield Athletic team by a score of 6 to 4. Although errors by members of both the teams marred certain portions of the contest, three brilliant double plays pulled by the locals more than made up for the misplays. In spite of the threatening weather and several local events which tended to decrease the attendance, more than a thousand loyal fans witnessed the contest.

Long at third and Pitcher Foster were the stars for the locals on the defense. Although Pitcher Foster seemed to have little trouble in mystifying the visitors, it was the clever fielding of the third-baseman that nipped several dangerous rallies, which without doubt would have spelled defeat for Lima. He started two of the double plays that were pulled off by the locals. Foster struck out eight men during the contest, but was a trifle wild, walking four men during the game. He also materially assisted in winning the game by making two hits and scoring a run.

On the offense Malloy starred with two hits, one of which sent in two runs. He also scored one of the markers. Egan at short was high man in counting tallies, as he scored twice without making a hit. He got on once by a gift of the pitcher and the other time through an error. However, in the field the little shortstop had a tough day, making two errors. As one of them was on a difficult chance it was excusable.

Mayor B. H. Simpson assisted in lifting the lid of the base ball season in Lima by addressing crowds in the bleachers and grandstand just before the start of the game. In a few well-chosen words he spoke of the value of the national pastime. The Lima team then went to their positions on the diamond and the mayor essayed to take the pitchers' box, which, he evidently thought to be in the outfield, but the impression was corrected by one of the Lima players and he threw the first ball of the game across the pan.

In the initial frame of the contest Peak and P. Lubbers, the first two men to face Foster, struck out, but each were thrown out at first when the catcher dropped the ball. Schenk was given a free pass to first, but went down for the third out when he attempted to steal second.

Harrison, the first man up for Lima, grounded out to short. A stinging two-base hit to right brought the fans to their feet with the vision of a score, but they were doomed to disappointment, as Egan and Herring, the next two men, grounded out.

The visitors drew first blood as the result of errors made by the locals in the third inning when they counted a lone marker. H. Acton, the first man up this inning, struck out, but W. Lubbers, the next batter in order received a life on an error made by Egan. C. Acton was then presented with a walk. Lubbers was forced at third, unassisted, when Peak hit a sharp grounder to long. With P. Lubbers at bat, W. Lubbers counted an unearned tally, when Herring made a wild throw to first in an attempt to catch Peak napping off the base. Lubbers then struck out.

The locals came back strong in their half of the same inning by scoring four runs. After Foster flied out, Harrison and Egan walked and assisted in counting the four tallies, when Herring, Malloy and Flannery singled in succession.

Egan counted again in the fifth frame, when he was given a life on an error by the center fielder, stole second, went to third on an infield out and scored on an infield hit. The locals scored their final run in the sixth, when Foster singled to left with one out, went to second on an infield out and scored when W. Lubbers dropped Long's fly.

In the eighth inning local rooters thought they saw victory slipping from the grasp of the local club, when the visitors started a batting rally, which, assisted by a number of errors, counted three runs, before they were halted by a double, started by Long. The final out of this inning was made by Thompson, Egan to Malloy. In the ninth inning the visitors again proved dangerous, when Windmaker singled to left after one was down, but the side was retired on a double play, Flannery to Malloy. The score:

CLEVELAND, O., May 22.—Maycr Davis and the boxing commission announced today that there will be no outdoor boxing in Cleveland this summer. Entry at Post Is Refused INDIANAPOLIS, May 22.—With the arrival of Dario Resta, practice has settled down to serious business at the Indianapolis motor speedway, for the sixth annual event May 30th. Resta has won every big event in the U. S. A. except the Indianapolis classic, namely, the Vanderbilt, the Grand Prix and at Chicago and New York speedways. He gave DePalma a close shave last year, but had to be satisfied with the second place, although he was only about four minutes behind him after practically six hours racing. Resta is accompanied by his wife, who is a sister of the late Spencer Wishart, at one time famous race driver.

For the first time in the history of automobile racing there have been repeated post entries in the Indianapolis event for May 30th. At no other race ever held were there more than one or two attempted post entries, and these were far from being common. The followers of the speed sport marvel at the number of behind-time aspirants. One of the last two has created quite a widespread sensation, as it was an attempt to get a Super-six Hudson car lined up. Although the request for this Hudson car was telegraphed by Ralph Mulford, it is rumored that the Hudson factory is sub rosa behind it. When considering that a few days ago Ira Vail tried to make a post entry of a Hudson car in his name, it looks as though the Hudson people had been doing in the open and compete for racing honors. The other one of the last two attempted post entries is J. C. Olsen, of Brooklyn, N. Y., who has a car of unknown antecedents which he has named after himself.

There have been rumors and counter rumors for some time concerning these post entries, but the final decision has been reached by the Indianapolis speedway, declaring that they will absolutely not accept a single post entry for their May 30th event. There are 30 starters who got their entries in before May 1. The seven who are disappointed are as follows: Ralph DePalma with his Mercedes; Delvin, with his 16-valve Deussenberg; Olsen, with his Olsen; Adams, with his Adams Special; Ira Vail, with his Hudson; the Super-six Hudson that Mulford tried to get in, and a car from Detroit, which, it is rumored, is a Packard, but its identity was not divulged when the boosters were unable to make a post entry of it.

The entry No. 29, for the Indianapolis race May 30, which has been known up-to-date as the mystery car, has slipped through the censorship and become public. The shroud of mystery has been shorn and it now stands exposed as a Richard. It is from Cleveland, manufactured by the Richard Auto Manufacturing Company. The owner is said to be R. H. Delno, of Tucson, Arizona, and he is scheduled to be the driver. The name of his mechanic is H. R. Godfrey, of Cleveland. Little is known of this car except that it is a four-cylinder type, with 3-1-4 bore by 8-15-16 stroke, giving a piston displacement of 286.8 cubic inches. W. J. Hoskyns has been offered and accepted the honorary position of accompanying Frank E. Smith in the pace making car, at the Indianapolis race. Hoskyns is well known among the automobile industries of Detroit, where considerable experimenting on the quiet and are now ready to come out he lives. Starter George M. Dickson announces his assistant will be Horace Hewitt, of Indianapolis, who has secretly been manufacturing aeroplanes for some time. Josef Christiaens and his mechanic, Frank Bill, from London, who was given military release by the British authorities, has forsaken the Indianapolis hotels and taken up his quarters at the speedway grounds, where he will live until after the race. Christiaens absolutely refuses to be interviewed upon the war situation in Europe, saying that when he returns he will re-enter the military service, and that having been in the aviation corps he is in possession of information which is of incalculable value to England's enemies, and he says he will not be tricked into discussing them. This is thought to be the reason why he has made a hermit of himself at the speedway grounds.

Harry Harkness, the entrant of the two Delage cars and the Puson, has announced his mechanics: Charles Dellocchio will ride with Charles Devigne; Bob Moore will pump the oil for Jack LeCain, and Nicholas Zwick will catch the pit signals for Aldo Franchi.

ENDS LIFE IN RAIN BARREL.

LAWRENCEBURG, Ky., May 21.—Mrs. Lydia Anna Guntz, 53 years old, wife of George Guntz, residing at Altam, four miles north of this city, ended her life by drowning herself in a rain barrel. Mrs. Guntz had been ill several weeks and was despondent. She is survived by six children and her husband.

GARDEN NOTES FOR JUNE.

Well established asparagus beds may be cut until the latter part of the month if kept in good tilth. Remember that your next year's crop of edible shoots is dependent largely upon the reserve food stored in the asparagus roots after the close of the cutting season, so do not sacrifice the future need for present gain by cutting too late. On the other hand cut all inferior stalks until that date as they supply breeding and feeding places for the asparagus beetle. The control of this pest is simplified by thorough tillage and clean culture. If no shoots from 4 to 6 inches high are permitted to remain uncut during the cutting season, the hatching of the eggs will be interfered with and the brood of young beetles will be practically eliminated. Make frequent successive plantings of sweet corn until the middle of July. The same may be said of lettuce and radishes. A late crop of string beans may be planted in early July. The late crop of tomatoes should be set early this month. Egg plant and peppers should also be set at once if not already in the ground. When the potato beetles get troublesome spray with arsenate of lead at the rate of 3 lbs. to 50 gallons of water. For cabbage worms the same remedy may be used, though white hellebore 1 ounce to 3 gallons of water is to be preferred.

WOOD FLOUR DEMAND GROWS.

The demand for wood flour is growing every year in the United States. Already more than 20,000 tons, the value of which exceeds $300,000, are used up annually. The bulk of it goes to linoleum manufacturing establishments and powder plants. Either wood or cork flour can be used for making linoleum but for gunpowder white wood flour is required.

GERMANS CONSERVE KEROSENE

A new device brought out as a result of the scarcity of kerosene in Germany for illuminating purposes is called a "carbide candle." It is fitted inside an ordinary kerosene lamp after the burner has been removed, and is said to furnish a cheap and satisfactory substitute for the kerosene light.—Pathfinder.

TREATS ANIMALS TEETH.

Will the decline of coffee drinking in Turkey, due to prohibitive prices, lead to a corresponding increase of goat among the Turks?

The French attribute their general freedom from gouty disorders to their love of coffee and in Turkey, it is said, diseases of the kind have hitherto been practically unknown. Prof. Johnson in "The Chemistry of Common Life," records the case of a man who had suffered from chalky gout for a quarter of a century, being cured eventually by a free use of coffee.

Some doctors, it must be added, take an opposite view, and forbid coffee to gouty patients.—London Chronicle.

WAR CONTRACTORS HARD HIT BY LEVY MADE IN BRITAIN

Must Pay 77 Per Cent of Income, According to New English Budget.

Those Getting Revenue From Invested Capital Also Suffer.

LONDON, May 22.—Seventy-seven per cent of his income is what the rich war contractor will pay to the government under Chancellor of the Exchequer McKenna's new budget schedule.

The contractor's contribution will be made through a direct income tax, a super-tax and an excess profit tax.

Leaving rich contractors out of consideration, the income tax is theoretically on a 25 per cent basis. This rate is charged, however, only on "earned incomes" of £2,500 (about $12,500) annually or more.

The rate is high, nevertheless, even on small incomes, amounting to 54 cents in every $4.80 even on those as small as £500 (about $2,500) annually.

On "unearned incomes"—those derived from invested capital—the levy is higher than on the ones their recipients work for. For instance, the 25 per cent rate begins to be charged on "unearned income" of £2,000 (about $10,000) annually.

Chancellor McKenna expects to raise, in the coming fiscal year, to meet war and ordinary governmental expenses £509,000,000 (almost exactly $2,443,200,000). This must come from a population of about 45,000,000.

The last fiscal year's revenue was £337,000,000 ($1,617,600,000) which means that the British Isles' taxes will be $25,600,000 higher in 1916-17 than in 1915, a tremendously stiff jump.

Even $1,617,600,000 was not enough to run the government and carry on the war last year, however. There was a deficit of £1,559,000,000 ($7,483,200,000). This had to be borrowed.

Chancellor McKenna assumed that the war will continue throughout the coming fiscal year, which would imply another deficit.

Accepting his figures, statisticians estimate that England's national debt in April next year will amount to something like £3,500,000,000 ($16,800,000,000).

Besides the income, super and excess property taxes, new levies were announced by the chancellor, as already announced, on theatre "movies", football, horse races and railroad tickets; mineral water and cider and notice was given of increased taxation on cocoa, coffee, chicory, sugar, automobiles and motorcycles.

The big revenue, however, is expected from what the recipients of incomes will have to pay. In general the new schedule met with approval.

The match tax, which will approximately double prices, promises to be unpopular. There are complaints also concerning a levy on railroad tickets. There is, further, bitter objection that the British workingman is not bearing his share with the upper and middle classes, the three groups being pretty sharply defined in England.

To a neutral onlooker there seems to be very little justification for this contention. Through the rents he paid and the low wages he has been compelled to accept, if nothing else, the English workingman unquestionably has been taxed to the point of extinction for years, though there is nothing new about the howl from the capitalist class that he has been getting off entirely.

The two most thoroughly dissatisfied groups appear to be the protectionists and an element which has been insisting that members of parliament be required to give up their salaries.

Neither party finds much fault with what Chancellor McKenna put into his budget, but they are dissatisfied with his failure to provide custom duties and to abolish parliamentary salaries.

The custom duties were called for as a means of raising revenue. McKenna referred to them as impossible for this purpose "on account of the cost and difficulty of collection." This could very well be taken care of, say the protectionists, by the staff engaged in making a national land valuation. Their opponents answer is that the same men who want protection oppose land taxation and are "playing both ends against the middle" in an effort to accomplish their political ends.

The accusation has been made that the aristocratic class wants to put an end to the payment of parliamentary salaries—£2,000 annually is allowed to each member at present—as a means of rendering it impossible for poor men, especially of the labor party, from continuing to serve.

Despite these political differences, even so conservative a newspaper as the London Afternoon Standard, an official tax, protection and opposed to parliamentary salaries as it is, declares that, though the chancellor's figures are "terrible," the nation will face them with courage and stern resolve to make even greater sacrifices before it relinquishes the objects before it.

TURKEYS ARE VALUABLE SIDE LINE FOR FARMER.

A more profitable side line than turkeys for the Ohio farmer can hardly be found for those situated on grain or stock farms, according to F. S. Jacoby, professor of poultry husbandry at the Ohio State University.

Improper feeding, combined with close confinement, has been the cause of many failures in turkey raising. Given free range on the average farm the poult can generally pick up their own living. One light feed per day for the purpose of inducing them to come in at night is sufficient.

Turkey eggs should always be hatched by a turkey hen and the mother confined to a coop where the poult can run in and out for a few days. Corn bread crumbs and elabored cheese is a good feed for the first few days after the brood is hatched.

DIP THE SHEET.

Sheep ticks, which are generally responsible for the loss of profits in sheep husbandry, can easily be destroyed by dipping all animals in the flock a few weeks after the wool has been clipped. Dipping at this time allows the solution to reach the skin, yet there is enough wool to hold the dip on the ticks. Sheepmen use a tank 6 feet long, 3 feet deep and 2 feet wide placed in the ground so that the sheep can be driven into it from a chute. The dipper should handle each animal separately completely immersing it. Any of the coal tar dips, as kerosene or zoleum, at the rate of 1 gallon of dip to 100 gallons of water is used. Some give the sheep a second dipping 10 days later to kill all that might have been in the egg stage at the first dipping.

WESTERN PROSPECTS BEAR WHEAT PRICE

CHICAGO, May 22.—Prospects that despite lessened acreage the Nebraska yield this season might equal the amount harvested in 1915 had a bearish influence today in the wheat market here. Opening prices, which ranged from 3-8 off to 5-8 up, with July at $1.12 to $1.12 1-4, and September at $1.12 5-8 to $1.12 7-8, were followed by a material setback all around.

Predictions of enlarged receipts eased the corn market. There was no urgent pressure, though, from sellers. After opening 1-4 down to 1-8 advance, prices underwent a moderate general sag.

Oats declined with other grain. Fine weather to promote growth gave an advantage to the bears.

Lower quotations on hogs weakened provisions. There was a notice absence of support.

CHICAGO, May 22.—The corn was heavy at 2 1-4 to 2 1-2 @ 2 5-8 net decline.

The wheat close was weak, 3 to 3 3-8 @ 1-2c net lower, with July at $1.08 1-2 @ 3-8 and September at $1.09 1-4 @ 3-8.

LURED BY MANIAC, 7,000 TROOPS DIE IN LITHUANIA BOGS

Russians Perish Miserably
Where Vengeful Peasant Leads Them.

Told He Would Guide Them
to Village Where Germans Stay.

BERLIN, May 22.—Adolph Stark, a correspondent who has been at the eastern front since the beginning of the war, reports a terrible Russian tragedy in swamps of Lithuania. He says:

"Recently I visited one of the German advance posts in the Lithuanian swamps. The captain in command of the village told me he and his men had seen comparatively little of the war for months. The swamps, which even in winter do not freeze over completely, protected the garrison against attacks.

"When we first took possession of the village surrounded on all sides by endless swamps we were a bit nervous," the captain said. "Our forces were small and we feared the Russians would make short work of us during the winter, but the population, which received us gladly, assured us the enemy would never be able to cross the marshes. The only road leading to the village we could defend easily.

"The inhabitants were bitter against the Russians, because the Cossacks on their retreat carried off everything they could lay their hands on and destroyed most of the houses. We assisted the poor people in rebuilding their huts and furnished them food.

"During the winter an old peasant offered to conduct my troops safely through the swamp for an attack on the nearest Russian position. I did not trust the old fellow, although he professed bitter hate against the Cossacks who had burned his small farm and killed his wife and two young sons. When I informed the headquarters of my brigade of the offer of the peasant I was told that no offensive operations on our part of the front were desirable for the time being. The old man was greatly disappointed. He could not understand why we did not use the chance to strike a blow against the enemy.

"When his offer was rejected the peasant who had evidently become insane from grief, decided to get revenge himself.

"A few weeks ago, just before the ice began to break, he rushed into my quarters and shouted: 'Come on, I will show you something that will gladden your heart.'

"His face was covered with blood streaming from a wound on his temple and he gave the impression of being a maniac. I decided to follow the man and took a lieutenant and two privates along. It was near daybreak when we left the quarters. As we wandered out on the ice we noticed that the weather had completely changed over night. The wind was almost warm and the open spaces in the swamp seemed much larger than they had been the evening before.

"After we had advanced a few hundred yards one of my men broke through the seemingly still strong ice and was almost drowned. The old man chuckled and advised us to walk closely behind him. Then he told us what he had done.

"I have lured a whole brigade of Russians into the swamps and they are now perishing," he said, joyously. 'For many weeks I have waited for this chance. Night after night I was out studying the weather and two days ago, when the wind changed to the south I knew that the hour for my revenge was near. Yesterday I went to the Russians and offered to lead them to your position. At first they mistrusted me, but they became convinced I was honest, when I demanded a large amount of money for my services. Two regiments with small cannon and many machine guns were made ready for the attack upon you and at midnight this force started to move over the ice. I led the regiments where I wanted them. When the ice began to break I disappeared in the rushes. They sent a few bullets after me, but only one of them grazed me. Just listen! Do you hear the dying wretches shouting over there?'

"I heard the shouts and what I saw through the rushes in the faint light of the morning almost froze the blood in my veins. Of the 7000 Russians who had started out to attack us about 4000 had already been swallowed up by the swamp and the remainder was struggling with death.

"When we returned to the village I locked the lunatic up and later I sent him behind the front. He is now in an insane asylum in Brest-Litovsk. The terrible scenes I had to witness that fearful morning will haunt me to the end of my days. I had an almost mad desire to save the helpless Russians who were drowning before my eyes by thousands, but I could do nothing."

Words of Praise For Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

"Last winter I used two bottles of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy," writes Mrs. John Miller, Rosanoke, Ind. "It cured me of a severe cold on the lungs and an aggravating cough. I have recommended this remedy to a great many people who have used it and have nothing but words of praise for it. Obtainable everywhere. mo-wed-411

SUIT AGAINST GAS CO. IS WITHDRAWN

E. W. Hiner for himself and the Lima Stone company, this morning withdrew the mandamus suits against the Lima Natural Gas company and agreed that the gas company should set its own meter on his property.

Hiner filed suits Thursday asking for a writ of mandamus to compel the Gas company to turn on the gas at his residence, 1000 West Market street, and also at the plant of the Lima Stone company. The court made the writs returnable today, at which time the defendant should show cause why the gas should not be turned on.

The withdrawal of the suit settles the matter, with the gas company installing its own meter as required under the rules of the utilities commission.

TIRED, NERVOUS, RUN-DOWN

Liver Clogged and Poisoning the System—Tollo Water Will Clean Your Liver and Start You Feeling Good in Half an Hour.

To much rich, starchy food clogs the liver. The drains become choked with waste matter and cannot discharge the bile as nature requires. When the little bile tubes in the liver become stopped, the bile is gradually forced back into the system, making the skin yellow and the tongue coated. The stomach gets upset, causing gas to form, you feel stuffy and uncomfortable after every meal, have a dull or sick headache and become tired, nervous and rundown.

The surest and quickest relief is a Tollo Water Liver bath. Get a 15-cent bottle from any drug store and take a third of a tumbler full in a glass of plain water before breakfast or at any time on an empty stomach. In half an hour after you have taken the first glass it will dissolve and flush out all the waste that is clogging the liver, leaving every tiny tube clean and fresh.

When the liver is clean and active you can eat what you like without suffering afterward, you will never be constipated, nervous and unstrung.

Tollo Water acts quicker and surer than calomel. It flashes and bathes the liver without irritation and does not make you sick or leave you weak and exhausted.

To get the best results and be sure you are rid of all the poison your system has absorbed you should take it every morning for a few days. You will notice your skin clearing up after the first day, but it should be continued until your natural healthy color returns.

THE BOONE CABINET IS THE BOON OF THE KITCHEN MAID

We have at last produced a Cabinet with perfect conveniences and so sanitary that it is beyond criticism—even by Dr. Wiley himself. Here pure food finds pure receptacles. Note the interior—WHITE ENAMELED, like PORCELAIN. See the Flour Bin and Sugar Jar, made of annealed, crystal glass—both removable for cleansing; the sugar jar absolutely ant proof. Just push gently those fade-away doors, how they QUICKLY DISAPPEAR inside like a roll top desk, not as in other cabinets—swung out over table top, necessitating clearing the table before they will open or close. Pull slightly on that nickled sliding table-top—Oh, so easily it comes out on its roller bearings. Observe the bright wire racks for the glass Tea, Coffee and Spice Jars, and for the Pans. Look at the large pot cupboard, also the drawers and metal bread and cake box.

This highly polished Golden Oak Cabinet is a handsome piece of furniture and the prices are extremely reasonable. Step in and examine them.
